U.S. Toll May Be Highest of War

33 Americans Killed, 76 Wounded

SAIGON (AP)--North Vietnamese sappers ran through a U.S. artillery base in the jungle south of Da Nang early Sunday, killing 33 Americans and wounding 76 within an hour. It was believed to be the highest American death toll of the war in an attack on a U.S. installation.

The U.S. Command reported 12 of the sappers were killed, some of them inside the base and some by helicopter and C119 gunships.

Much of the base was overrun, but it remained in American control today. "Extensive action is being conducted in the area," the U.S. Command said.

There was a general setup in enemy action, much of it in the Da Nang region. U.S. officers said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were taking advantage of the dark of the moon--"there is always higher enemy activity about this time because it's easier for the enemy to get into position without being detected," one officer said.

Viet Cong sappers raided a resettlement village 25 miles south of Da Nang early today, killing 13 South Vietnamese, wounding 21 and burning 100 houses. Twenty-five 100-pound rockets hit the Da Nang Air base and the nearby Marble Mountain air facility, damaging a few planes and helicopters and wounding several Americans. Enemy gunners also shelled the headquarters of the U.S. American Division at Chu Lai, south of Da Nang, but no casualties or damage was reported.

The attack on the artillery base 50 miles south of Da Nang began about 2 a.m. with a barrage of 50 to 60 mortar rounds that pinned down the less than 400 American defending the base.

"They put in some mortar rounds and our people took cover," said one American field officer. "There were sappers going through the place throwing satchel charges into our bunkers and firing positions. The sappers swept across the base and dropped the charges as they went across. They did most of the damage."

Fourth Hospitalized

Three Children Die In Blaze

BERNIE--Three children are dead and another hospitalized as a result of a Saturday night fire that destroyed the R. L. Johnson farm house five miles east of Bernie.

Dead are Mary Ann Johnson, seven; Robbie Ann Johnson, four; and Robert Lewis Ayers, two. Death was caused by suffocation.

Fire Chief Al Banken said the father and mother, Emma Ayers, were out feeding on the farm when they spotted the fire at 5:06 p.m. He said they ran into the house and dragged four children out.

Robbie Johnson and Robert Ayers were dead at the scene. Mary Johnson died at 2:30 a.m. Sunday at Dexter Memorial hospital. Shirley Ayers, the fourth child, was reported in fair condition at the hospital.

Mary Johnson was born Nov. 22, 1963 in Cape Girardeau. Robbie Johnson was born Aug. 6, 1966 in Burlington, Iowa. Robert Ayers was born Jan. 12, 1969 in Dexter.

Other survivors include two brothers, Carol Ayers and Calvin Gene Ayers,; and two sisters, Christine Ayers and Sarah Jean Ayers.

The bodies were taken to Rainey Funeral Home in Dexter.

Anchor Toy Doors Close

Anchor Toy, a division of New York based Transogram Corp., has closed the doors of its Sikeston manufacturing plant.

The shutdown was announced to employes Friday afternoon by Plant Superintendent Brad Shain.

In a prepared statement written by Transogram officials, Shain said:

"Due to the financial condition of the company and its uncertain future under chapter II of the Bankruptcy Act, the plant is being closed as of today—indefinitely."

Anchor Toy began operations in Sikeston in February of 1956. At one time it was one of the largest employers in the city with a payroll of nearly 500.

Last year it employed nearly 300 but Shain explained:

"A small reduction in the working force was made due to the difficulty in obtaining raw materials."

At that time the work force was reduced from 208 to 63. Friday the remaining 63 were laid off.

The Sikeston shutdown is a result of financial difficulties of the parent company, Transogram.

According to Stanley Hendler, New York attorney for the company, the reason for the bankruptcy was that immediate interim financing wasn't available. With various lawsuits and actions pending against Transogram, it was necessary to seek the assistance of the federal court to permit the company to continue operating, he said.

Officials of Transogram in New York declined to comment on the shutdown this morning and said only that they had "enjoyed a good relationship with the community of Sikeston and would issue a statement as soon as possible."

Anchor Toy was an assembly plant for plastic toys. Plastic parts were shipped to Sikeston where a completed toy was produced.

Transogram previously had discontinued operations in plants in Michigan and Pennsylvania. The Sikeston plant was the last remaining operation of the company.

BRAD SHAIN, plant manager of Anchor Toy, said this morning that only a skeleton crew will be maintained at the establishment. At one time the company employed nearly 500.

Inn Fire Leaves 3 Dead, 7 Missing, 14 Injured

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP) — An intense fire, with flames that could be seen for miles, raced through the 117-year-old Canandaigua Inn early today leaving at least three persons dead, seven missing and sending 14 persons to hospitals.

Firemen searching the smouldering rubble found two charred bodies buried in the wreckage. A third man died of a heart attack after fleeing the burning hotel in the early morning hours.

Stanley Rypka, a former patient at a Veterans Administration Hospital here, collapsed at the scene and died at the hospital.

Detective Anthony Decere said the fire broke out on the top floor of the four-story brick and wood building and engulfed all but the ground floor within 20 minutes.

Occupants of the 70 rooms included students at the Finger Lakes Community College and patients recently discharged from the nearby Veterans Administration hospital.

Five hours after the blaze was reported, at 12:25 a.m., the building continued to burn, preventing firemen from checking for bodies.

"I'm afraid there are victims buried beneath the rubble," Decere said.

"There must be bodies in there," a witness said. "They couldn't all have gotten out."

A spokesman for the hospital said a staff member at the scene made contact with most of the former patients and reported them "okay."

A number of persons were rescued by ladder from the top floors and others were led down fire escapes to safety.

More than 150 firemen and equipment from communities as far as 20 miles away were called in. At the height of the four hour blaze flames were visable for almost ten miles.

Today's fire was the third major blaze at the inn in the last 13 years.

Health Specialist Addresses Conference

Young Stress Environment

Sikeston High School today was host to an environmental conference for 21 area schools with more than 135 students attending.

The all-day conference, designed to create an awareness among high school students to environmental problems, was at the First Baptist church.

Bill Young, area environmental health specialist from Sedalia, gave the keynote address. Young was the first environmental health specialist in the nation.

He said that high schol students have the greatest environmental concern of any age group.

"I've spoken to all age groups and I find that among the high school students there is the greatest amount of honest concern and desire to effect a change.

"Concern for environmental problems run from the doomsday prophets to the totally unconcerned," he said. Unfortunately a great deal of the unconcerned groups are the ones in power."

Young said that until recently people have not been much concerned with the problem of environment.

"A lot of people feel that the pollution concern is just a fad of the young," he said. "A few years ago they had civil rights, and then the war and now they have taken on the environment, but this isn't true. There is real concern among the young."

Young's address was followed by a panel discussion on "Population, Urbanization and Technology." Members of the panel were Debbie Voorhees, Columbia University of Missouri nursing school; Jim Pierce, director of trace element laboratory at the University and Jack McCall, area environmental health specialist from St. Louis.

The students attended a luncheon at the Holiday Inn and heard a discussion on "Federal Environmental Enforcement" by Towena Michaels, Washington coordinator of public information for youth with the environmental protection agency.

Workshops held thi afternoon included:

Air - Michae MARSHALL' DIRECTOR OI ENFORCEMENT AII CONSERVATIO COMMISSION IN Jefferso City, chairman. Water — Pegg Keilholz, administrative assistan with the Missouri wat pollution board in Jefferso City, chairman. Solid Waste - Ralph Frederickson, assistan chief, solid waste project wit the division of health of Missouri in Jefferson City, chairman.

Workshops were also held in the high school.

Members of the workshops were Bill Branum, president of the student council; David Crader, vice president of the student council; Bob Depro, faculty representative; Barbara Brown, sponsor of Harlequin Players; Susan Ward, representative of the arts department; Gary Westwood, university of Missouri at Columbia and Joe Welbourn, Bloomfield.

BILL YOUNG, Area Environmental Health Specialist from Sedalis, delivers the keynote address to more than 135 area high school students during an environmental conference.

33 Crewmen Missing From Tanker Which Broke in Two

PORTSMOUTH, Fa. (AP) — Thirty-three of 44 crewmen were missing today from the tanker Texaco Oklahoma, which broke in two in heavy Atlantic seas 120 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Eleven men of the tanker's crew were rescued from a life raft by a passing freighter, which headed for New York as the Coast Guard resumed a search this morning for possible survivors.

Most of the missing crewmen were from the area of Port Arthur, Tex. The tanker was loaded with 220,000 barrels of oil.

The Coast Guard here said the cutter Escanaba and an aircraft from its air station at Elizabeth City, N.C., were dispatched this morning to search the area where the Texaco Oklahoma went down.

The Coast Guard said it was a mystery why three-fourths of the crewmen apparently didn't escape the sinking ship early Saturday.

It was 36 hours after the 661foot vessel broke in two in 15foot seas and winds of 40 to 60 knots before the Coast Guard learned of the tragedy.

The word came in the form of two messages from the Liberian freighter Sasstown saying it had picked up 11 survivors in a life raft.

Both messages, the Coast Guard said, reported 20 crewmen missing—last seen by the survivors as they abandoned the stern section of the 20,084ton tanker about 5:30 a.m. Sunday.

A Texaco spokesman in Port Arthur, said however that records showed 42 crewmen aboard.

The Sasstown, en route to New York, sighted the life raft about 4 p.m. Sunday.

Revenue Bills To Get Priority

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Dockets of both houses are clogged with hundreds of bills but pressing revenue problems have top priority when the Missouri Legislature comes back to work today.

Both the House and Senate were to meet at 2 p.m.

As a special order of business the House will take up for passage a bill to extend the present one-year income tax rates on a permanent basis.

Last December a special session enacted rates of 1½ to 6 per cent for individuals and a top of 5 per cent for corporations. They will expire Dec. 31 which would leave the state in even worse financial shape than it is now.

The House bill is believed to have enough votes for passage.

Meanwhile, Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur, said if enough senators were present he would call up for renewed debate his bill to maintain present income tax rates and make changes in the law to conform with federal definitions.

He says this would provide lower income taxes for persons earning up to $9,000 a year.

Money Runs out On SST Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — "On Tuesday, the U.S. will be out of the SST business. That's the day the money runs out."

The speaker is William M. Magruder, director of the office of supersonic transport development for the Department of Transportation.

The SST development package was killed by Congress last week when the Senate followed earlier House action and rejected $134 million in subsidies. That put the federal government out of the SST picture. There may be private financing of the program but, Mcgruder says, talks so far "have not been very encouraging."

Even though his office won't be working on SST development, it will operate, for awhile. Closing out the program may take up to two years. "No one has ever terminated a $1 billion unfinished business before," Magruder said.

Ending the federal role may include helping sell the American SST development plan to a foreign bidder.

Sunday, Magruder said inquiries have been received from Japan, West Germany and the Middle East. He identified only the Japanese firm, Ataka, a small trading company which has requested the State Department set up a trade mission visit on the matter.

Bid for Orton to Run Filed

CARUTHERSVILLE (AP)--An attorney for Clyde Orton, Pemiscot County sheriff said today he has filed a motion with the Missouri Supreme Court aimed at allowing the sheriff to run for the office from which he has been ordered ousted.

The court ordered the ouster March 8 for oppression in office and neglect of duty. Fifteen days were allowed for filing of motions before the order is made final, but the court has not yet rendered a final judgment.

Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth filed a motion aimed at barring Orton from running in a special election to fill the office he would vacate.

Attorney James Reeves said he has sent to the Supreme Court memoranda on five different ouster suits brought in the past by the state. He said "in no instance does the court determine eligibility of the respondent for re-election."

ARE CRIMINAL ACTS A HUMAN RIGHT?

Some time ago the nation was rocked by the news story that an Iowa couple — Mr. and Mrs. Edward Briney of Eddyville — had lost their home to a convicted crook who had been injured by a trap gun while he was breaking and entering. The burglar sued the Brineys because of the wound he received, and the court awarded $30,000 plus $5000 in court costs to the crook. The Brineys faced the loss of their 80 acre farm and house in order to raise the money to pay the thief.

The case apparently was won by the larcenist on the fallacious grounds of "human rights vs. property rights." It's been said before, but 'twill do no harm to repeat it again; property has no rights. There is, however, the human right to own property. If that human right is destroyed, there are precious few rights left, because the right to own one's property is basic to the right of liberty, or speech, or happiness, or, in the last analysis, to life itself.

Suppose, for example, that a government dictatorship should take over ownership and control of all food production, distribution and sale. Any time the government wishes to do so, it can starve you to death — simply by turning off the spigot.

Or, as in the case of Chile; at this moment, the Marxist government is slowing "assuming" (correct term, stealing) ownership of all privately, independently controlled newspapers. It goes without saying that once the government owns all of the press-property, free speech is wiped out.

Now that the Briney case has entered a new phase , the eyes of the nation will watch the outcome with interest. In a counter-action, the Brineys have now, in turn, sued the criminal. The victims are asking for $40,000 in action and $25,000 in punitive damages from the burgular, contending that a man should not profit from his criminal actions.

In a related court action, the Brineys have asked for an injunction freeing them from paying the original damage award to the thief. Thus far the injuction has been refused by the Iowa lower courts, and it is expected that the case will go to the state Supreme Court.

LESS MONEY AROUND?

In reading Capital Advisors report, we agree with their contention that consumers, corporations and governments strangely enough are each of the opinion that it's the other fellow who's got the liquid funds. For example, teachers in New York threatened with lay offs accuse the city and state of holding back the money; the lcal governments in turn argue that Washington has the money; and Administration economists complete the circle when they say that all the economy needs now is the confidence of the consumer for certainly he's got all the money to spend whenever he so desires.

What do you think?

RENDERING UNTO CESAR

The movement led by Cesar Chavez to unionize California grape pickers has become so involved with liberal emotions, and also so fashionable a "cause," that the substance of the whole controversy — though fascinating — is seldom discerned ....

From the Volkswgen with its "Boycott Grapes" sticker, to the pages of the National Catholic Reporter, to Southampton, L.I., where beautiful people like Anne Uzielli and Ethel Kennedy stage elaborate bashes in support of Chavez, the satisfying myth prevails: Migrant workers, grossly underpaid and living in wretched conditions, pick the grapes in the San Joaquin valley; they are naturally eager to join Chavez' union; but they are prevented from doing so by fear of the growers, who comprise a fascistic oligarchy. Hence national, and even global, moral indignation.

The reality is much more complicated and ethically problematical. In Delano, the major grape-growing area which is central to the whole controversy, 90 per cent of the pickers aren't migrants, but year-round residents. They are also exceptionally well paid, the best paid agricultural workers in the continental U.S., averaging between $2 and $2.50 per hour — much more, for example, than the $1.69 per hour of the average California farm worker. Delano workers also enjoy more comprehensive extra benefits than farm workers in any other state.

But Chavez has concentrated on Delano precisely because the pickers are well paid and are not migrants. He in fact abandoned his earlier attempt to organize migrants in Texas, for their very mobility makes it difficult to collect dues efficiently, and in states like New York and Florida migrants aren't paid enough to make the dues worth collecting. But in Delano the workers are on the scene, and they have the money.

Which is precisely why they have not been eager to join Chavez. So far, only about three per cent have signed up. And this wariness about Chavez is why there has in fact been no "grape strike"; thus making the consumer boycott Chavez' chief weapon. The "pickets" Chavez has been able to muster are not Delano grape pickers but Chavez followers from elsewhere.

What, then, is going on? In order to have a viable union, Chavez needs the dues of the relatively well paid and established, but therefore reluctant, table-grape pickers in the San Joaquin valley. He also wants a closed shop — i.e., a monoply — and so opposes placing farm workers under the NLRB, which would make a closed shop illegal. Now if this were all, one would conclude that Chavez is merely on the make, and wants the power and profit such a situation would bring him.

But this is not so. Everything we know about his life and his ideals goes against such a conclusion. The truth appears to be more complex and more ambiguous. Chavez conceives of the grape-picker drive in the context of the entire Mexican - American problem.

If he can force unionization on the grape pickers, he will have an organization in being, witn funds, and such an organization would apply economic and political pressure on behalf of Mexican - American migrants, on behalf of the urban barrios, and so on. The reluctant dues of the Delano pickers are only the essential foundation of his efforts to improve the lot of Mexican - Americans generally. Like the Mafia for the Italians, like the urban political machines for the Irish a generation ago, the grape-pickers union will be an instrumentality of Mexican-American community power.

All this may be admirable, and may even be practicable (though the growers say that if Chavez succeeds, they will simply switch to wine grapes, which can be harvested by machine). But it is all pretty remote from the melodrama of liberal myth.

Those who boycott grapes are penalizing growers — most of them small, family-owned enterprises, which pay good wages and provide good working conditions — in order to force pickers, mostly against their will, to pay their dues to Chavez in order to organize economic and political power on behalf of the Mexican - American community.

BEATING DRUMS FOR OTHER FELLOW

We're not exactly beating the drums for the other fellows who are our competitors for the advertising dollar, but can't keep quiet on an obvious unfair attempt to tax some of them.

Last week at Jefferson City a bill advanced which would tax advertising on billboards and in magazines, while at the same time exempting advertising in newspapers of less than 10 million subscribers (of which we are one). If it is fair to tax them, it is also fair to tax newspapers, radio and television advertising.

As Gertrude Stein would have said "advertising is advertising is advertising" and if we're going to tax one sort, in all fairness we should tax all.

Of course, we've always contended that advertising is a service, not a commodity, and as such should not be taxed. If it is however, all services should be subject to the sales tax — such as those of lawyers, doctors, income tax preparers, plumbers, carpenters, and all other services.

MOB BEHAVIOR

Congress has certainly demonstrated the truth of the adage that "what is everybody's business is nobody's business." Individually, each congressman is as well-meaning a citizen as anyone else. Chances are, he is fully aware of what makes inflation. He--as an individual--is all for economy in government. He knows that a government that lives within its means is the sole hope of halting inflation, stabilizing prices and protecting the dollar which his fellowman works so hard to attain in enough numbers to keep a family going and build savings for the future. Yet, as a whole, Congress is acting like an uncontrollable mob. Its action in cutting taxes and boosting appropriations far beyond Administration requests is a sure road to more inflation.

The behavior of Congress will eventually have to be explained to folks back home by each individual congressman. No matter how meritorious his personal beliefs, his record as part of the mob in Washington deserves questioning.

A GLARING CONTRADICTION

We are hearing more and more of a cooperative government - industry effort to train and place the hard - core unemployed in productive jobs. The National Alliance of Businessmen hopes to encourage private industry to find places for 500,000 men and women in jobs by June, 1971. In addition, private industry has been asked to provide 200,000 summer jobs to needy young men and women. Everyone recognizes that the time for platitudes in meeting the crisis of urban strife and riots is long past. Part of this crisis has been caused by the steady flow of people from rural areas to thycities, where a percentage of them fall into the classification of hard - core unemployed -- the unemployed that industry, with the cooperation of government, is seeking to help.

Some industries appear to be less suited than others to help with the urban crisis. For example, the timber industry is basically rural. It can provice few jobs in the core areas of cities. But, if given a chance, it can help in other ways. It can provide steady employment in the smaller communities, where its far- flung operations are centered, and this brings up the glaring contradiction in public policy with regard to utilization of the nation's forest lands. Timber companies, mindful of the pressing need for wood products and jobs, as well as recreation, have long espoused the multiple user of our forest lands. They have been fighting an uphill battle to prevent the locking up of vast tracts of timberlands in sterile wilderness areas -- sterile because trees are like any other crop. If not harvested, they go to waste, and no one benefits.

The belief that a wilderness is static and should be reserved for wildlife and recreation only is both ill- founded and unwise -- ill- founded because it is not true, and unwise for the simple reason that population growth calls for use of timberlands for wood production, as well as recreation. So again it must be said that the timber industry, if given a chance, can help with the hard - core unemployment problem by preserving the thousands of jobs dependent upon our timberlands -- the nation's greatest renewable natural resource.

HEADLINE SEEKER

Birch Bayh, the gadfly Senator from Indiana, has struck again. Long known for his unswerving devotion to headline seeking and his dauntless courage in looking at TV cameras, the Hoosier hotshot has again jumped mouth first into the limelight.

Last month, three Dallas County deputy sheriffs were surprised, disarmed, bound and then brutally executed in cold blood by desperadoes. This gangland type killing shocked and outraged the law-abiding populace of Dallas, whether black, white or Mexican-American, and a large-scale manhunt for the desperadoes ensued. Arrests were made and those indicted by a grand jury happened to be Mexican-American.

Birch Bayh, from his peregrine perch over the Potomac, couldn't miss a bet like this to get his name publicized. Bayh failed to express any symphathy to the families of the slain deputies, one of whom was also a Mexican-American, or any outrage over the continuing assasinations of law enforcement officers. But with incisive idiocy symptomatic of the liberal philosophy which pervades Washington DC, Bayh proceeded to denounce the Dallas Police Department as having "terrorized" the entire Mexican-American population of Dallas.

Now, the fact is that the Dallas Police Department under the inspired leadership of its new Chief, Frand Dyson, is accomplishing a reduction in the crime rate where other metropolitan areas are still experiencing a rising crime rate. Bayh is obviously trying to make minority hay out of headline grabbing, but he may discover those always trying to make political hay may be turned out to pasture. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--The Secretary of Defense traditionally has fought in the backrooms for more money, more men, more weapons. It is newsworthy, therefore. that Mel Laird has been calling for military reductions.

He has argued that the nation, by pursuing peace as its policy could avoid future Vietnams. This would make it unnecessary , he has contended, to maintain, the present military build-up.

He has agreed that the U.S. must be prepared to defend its legitimate intersts around the world. But he has questioned the need to rush to the aid of every tottering nation that is faced with insurrection.

He has suggested that former President Johnson never would have been drawn so deeply in Vietnam if peace had been the national priority and a large stand-by force hadn't been available for brush warfare.

Laird has been bitterly opposed inside the policymaking councils by his own military chiefs. Last month, he was finally overruled in the White House by Henry Kissinger, the powerful national security aide.

The bald, bluff Defense Secretary submitted his views to the White House in a position paper, with strong dissents from each of the three services. The paper wound up, inevitably, in Kissinger's Defense Program Review Committee, which appears on the White House organization charts as part of the National Security Council. Kissinger rejected Laird's proposals and laid down the military guidelines last month in a secret memo that had President Nixon's approval.

Essentially, the guidelines call for consolidation and modification of conventional forces to increase their effectiveness. There will be some pullback in Asia, but the U.S. will hold the line in Europe.

To maintain a "realistic deterrence," there will be no substantial cutback in conventional strength, and enough nuclear weapons will be scattered around the world to discourage an enemy attack.

DOLE'S DELIRIUM

When an obscure right-wing publication recently published an astonishing memorandum on Republican political strategy purportedly written by Attorney General John Mitchell, a Midwestern subscriber couldn't believe what she read.

So she sent a copy of the publication, "The WomanConstitutionalist," to Sen. Bob Dole, the Republican National Chairman, asking whether the memorandum was authentic.

She had good reason to wonder. Supposedly addressed to "All White House Staff," the memo called for an all-out GOP appeal to the minority vote as a means of winning the 1972 campaign.

It ordered that all criminal prosecutions of Negroes be immediately stopped and that welfare mothers be paid $50,000 apiece in federal subsidies so they could move to the white suburbs.

"White union leaders will be arrested (and) replaced by Negroes approved by the White House," the memo goes on. "TO OBTAIN THE JEWISH VOTE, the Pentagon has scheduled TEN THOUSAND TROOPS FOR JERUSALEM SIX WEEKS BEFORE the election."

The memo, obviously, is a fake. But Dole wrote the woman: "It does contain much food for thought and I would be inclined to believe its authenticity is not questionable."

A spokesman for Mitchell called the memo "pure unadulterated nonsense." A sheepish spokesman for Dole explained that the Kansas Senator got so many letters that some had to be answered by staff and he didn't have time to check them all.

WASHINGTON WHIRL

TV COMMERICALS--Federal Communication Chairman Dean Burch has invited parents to tell him whether they object to the hard-sell commercials that interrupt children's television programs. But the TV networks have largely suppressed Burch's request for comments. Except for one or two brief mentions in newscasts, the FCC chairman's statement about kiddies' commercials has been kept off TV. Interested parents and other TV viewers have until May 3 to tell Burch what they think of these commercials. Letters should be addressed to Chairman Dean Burch, Federal Communications Commission, Washington, D.C. 20554.

NIXON-MANSFIELD--President Nixon, despite his troubles with the Democrats who run Congress , always invites Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield over tothe White House for breakfast about twice a month. The two men meet in the first floor family dining room about 8 a.m. for a morning meal that, invariably, is much bigger than either man normally eats. While the President would like to glean as much information as possible about the Majority Leader's thinking, he usually finds himself doing most of the talking. Mansfield is that rare political specimen--a quiet man, given to answering questions with a quick "yes" or "nope." As an aide puts it: "He can stare down anyone in a silence contest."

MIDEAST SETTLEMENT?--The diplomatic negotiators are close to achieving a partial Middle East settlement that would call for a withdrawal of Israeli and Egyptian forces from both banks of the Suez Canal. The canal would then be reopened to international shipping. This happens to be Russia's chief objective in the peace negotiations. Once the canal is re-opened, State Department strategists expect the Russians to continue to stir up tension and turmoil in the Middle East. Our strategists believe, however, that the Kremlin will step back from a confrontation with the United States.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

CASHLESS CITIES: Labor Chiefs Losing Powerful Liberal Political Allies:

WASHINGTON: -- Across the oval table in the White House Cabinet Room sat Spiro Agnew facing New York's John Lindsay, the singing-est mayor since Jimmy Walker went up to Central Park. No Dream sequence this. Richard Nixon was still president. Mr. Agnew still was vice president.

This was last Tuesday, March 23. It was not even the scene of a confrontation -- and so it lost some brownie points for Mr. Lindsay among the bright Fu Manchu mustachios around the nation who want him campaigning soon for the presidency.

It was in fact a moment of mutual sympathy and empathy. The handsomely profiled, 6-foot-4, big-town mayor looked around and observed that in two years he had become the third in seniority in the group -- a committee of 30 mayors who had come seeking stringless money.

"The turnover in mayors is terriffic," said Mr. Lindsay.

He added that he was amazed to discover that, except for Philadephia's Mayor Tate and one other, he (Lindsay) was the ranking senior member and had become so despite only two terms in office.

Mr. Nixon, nodding sympathetically, said that he had met with the mayor's committee two years ago and half of them were not here today, "not because they were beaten but because most of them quit. It has often been said that whoever sits in this chair of mine has the toughest job in the world. But the fact is there are times when your jobs out there on the front lines are infinitely more difficult."

This came late in the day after some passionate discussion of the shambles of the cities and impassioned pleas for mutual assistance.

The federal and municipal executives have many common headaches -- and it is certain they do believe that militant labor is one which needs some political aspirin very quickly or the cities will be bankrupted -- and the nation, too.

From this conviction is springing a series of confrontations between even the most liberal of mayors, white and black, and the labor movement itself.

It will get bitter. It will get loud. And it will be one of the most significant developments of our time. From it will roll fantastic political realignments.

The pressure on the cities, from their rapidly unionizing employes' demands for huge wage increases, and insistence on early retirmemt which would cost billions annually in pensions, is draining municipal treasuries.

For example, the New York City fire fighters are holding out for retirement with full pay at any age after 33 years on the job. Therefore, it would soon be possible for some of them to retire at about $300 weekly at 54 years of age.

This is turning off many of labor's liberal friends. There came to my microphone the other day one angry Irishman, Timothy Costello, New York's deputy mayor, former state chairman of the Liberal Party and a militant unionist himself. He's a long hair philosophically and professionally.

He singled out the city's "inflexible" civil service unions for special criticism. And he called for a complete reassessment of the "outmoded concept of trade unionism and its leadership. " Then he called for a "wage-price holiday." Then the union chiefs called him some names, unprintable even in these "off-the-wall" times.

Some days earlier, proving that national policy makers were also declaring war on the labor movement, Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns said the time had come for Congress to cut away some of labor's powers and to stop subsidizing strikers. He called for the end of food stamps and (in two states) unemployment insurance for strikers. He said the power of construction unions was so great, and that wages and other construction costs were so high in cities such as Kansas City and Los Angeles, that "it could ruin great cities."

Such talk by liberal mayors, their aides and high federal officials would have been unthinkable not too long ago. In moments such as these, labor goes for the political jugular.

And we're about to see a riproaring confrontation which will demonstrate whether or not labor still has its old clout as it faces this strange coalition of angy liberals and desperate middle-of-the-roaders.

Labor views the President's plans for the reorganization of federal agencies as an engraved invitation to dinner at a leper colony. Under the plan, the 58-year-old Labor Dept. would be sliced almost in two.

Of its 10,000 employes, just under 6,000 would go into the proposed Dept. of Economic Development. The other 5,000 would be shifted to the Dept. of Human Resources. Thurs, there would not be one central "voice," as George Meany puts it, for labor. The movment looks upon this devleopment "with deep skepticism." In official statements they have hacked at theplan. They are not about to see their "own" special interests department dissolved.

But the plan will become law after 60 days -- unless Congress kills it. Labor will be swarming up the Hill to kill it -- for without the Labor Dept. much of Labor's power will dissipate.

So the battle will be a test of labor's political strength in the Congress -- and the forerunner of the 1972 effort to reward its friends and punish its enemies.

Just watch closely now to see whether the union chiefs can score better than they did on the SST.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Chinese doctors used to keep small ivory dolls on which their lady patients, too modest to undress, would point out the site of their symptoms.

Why the world's oceans are being polluted: 5 to 10 million tons of oil are spilled into them each year. Most of it comes from the pumping of bilges, the dumping of used fuel and pipeline breaks—not from tanker collisions.

The United States is now the seventh largest wine-producing nation, and 90 per cent of the wine we consume is domestic. Our thirst for this beverage is still moderate. We drink an average of only two gallons a person each year, compared with 30 gallons for the Frenchman or Italian.

What is the deadliest seaway? It is the busy 350-mile long English Channel, where half the world's ship crashes take place. There is at least one collision a month in its crowded waters, plied by 1,000 vessels a day.

To tell or not: Should a doctor tell a patient that he has cancer? Of a group of 100 patients so diagnosed and told the seriousness of their disease, 89 expressed approval for having been informed, 6 said they would have preferred not to know and 5 had no opinion.

Hippies, please note: English gentlemen in the 18th century prided themselves on the length of their hair. Some plastered their tresses before bedtime with two pounds or more of a mixture of pomatum, flour and powder, then slept all night sitting up in an armchair to keep from disarranging their coiffure.

One thing amiss with medicine, women liberationists complain, is its lack of women. They point out that though women make up 51 per cent of the population, only 7.4 per cent of physicians and 10.5 per cent of first-year medical students are feminine.

Worth remembering: "When a man has everything that a woman could ask for, she usually does."

It was William James who observed: "The prevalent fear of poverty among the educated classes is the worst moral disease from which our civilization suffers."

Jim Starnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Starnes, has made the president's list at Southern Baptist College, Walnut Ridge, Ark., for the first semester. The academic achievement for this honor ranges from 3.94 to 4 according to President H. E. Williams.

War on Cancer

JEFFERSON CITY — "This is a moment in history when the private citizen, through the American Cancer Society, can join in the greatest attack on cancer the world has ever seen," Dr. Charles E. Lockhart, Springfield, Missouri's professional delegate to the National Society, said today.

"We welcome and heartily support proposal for an enlarged and massive drive against this disease which kills more than 300,000 Americans every year," Dr. Lockhart said. "I also foresee a much greater demand for ACS activities. Our aim is to raise one billion dollars in the decade of the 70's to do our fair share in supporting research, promoting professional and public education, and giving service to the cancer patient. Cancer prevention, better tools for diagnosis, the development of new cancer drugs, as well as, selection of the best surgical and radiation techniques are always of great concern."

In Congress, several bills have been introduced including one co-sponsored by Senators Edward M. Kennedy (Mass.) and Jacob Javits (N. Y.) calling for the establishment of a National Cancer Authority. Senator Kennedy said, "The pittance we spend on cancer is dramatic evidence of the urgent need to reorder our national priorities," while pointing out that Americans spend $125 per person each year on the Vietnam war and only 89 cents on cancer research.

"The American Cancer Society has helped achieve much of the progress which has been made in the last decade," Dr. Lockhart declared. "For example, the Society's public education programs in local communities throughout the nation have been teaching women the importance of early detection in the control of breast and uterine cancers. And at a time when deaths from lung cancer have been soaring, we have consistently been alerting people to the danger of cigarette smoking. We also make certain that the latest techniques are brought to the attention of physicians."

Dr. Lockhart foresees a continuing vital role for the American Cancer Socity in these expanded programs. "we already provide more than $24-million a year for cancer research.

Ann Landers

Keeping Score Not Fair

Dear Ann Landers: I've started this letter five times since January 2 and thrown it away because I just couldn't find the right words without sounding coarse and vulgar. Today I decided to express myself as best I can and I hope you will forgive me.

In 1970 I marked a secret calendar, keeping count of how many times my husband made love to me. The grant total on December 31 was 22. This wouldn't be so bad if he were 80 years old, but we are both 25.

When I started to keep count, I made a vow to myself that I would never again make the first move or try to talk him into making love to me which, I am ashamed to say, I had done on several occasions. I realized I had been degrading myself -- like a woman of the streets. I decided if he didn't want me as much as I wanted him, our lovemaking would have no real meaning.

My husband I get along well otherwise. Our friends consider our marriage one of the best. They keep referring to us as a model couple. (Little do they know!)

I am seriously considering divorce. We have no children and are both young enough to make a new life with another partner. Please advise. ---Demand Supply Crisis in San Mateo

Dear D.: It sounds to me as if you want your marriage to fail. A wife who would play this numbers game is consciously or subconsciously hoping her husband's performance will be poor so she will have a reason to dump him.

Your notion that a wife who is sexually aggressive degrades herself "like a woman of the streets" gives me a small clue as to the root of your problem.

Married love should be just as exciting to a woman as to a man and a wife should not be ashamed to initiate it -- in fact, some husbands find this immensely flattering. You need counseling, honey. You consider yourself a very sexy lady who isn't getting enough, but my hunch is that you don't know what it's all about.

Dear Ann Landers: I want to thank you for taking a strong stand against hitchhiking. True, there are some nice kids thumbing their way, but a driver can't tell by looking who is "nice" and who is going to stick a gun in his ribs. Aside from the danger to the driver there is also danger to the hitchiker.

I would like to quote an editorial which appeared recently in the Hartford Courant.:

"A survey by Los Angeles police revealed that 22 girls who hitched rides were victims of forcible rape in that city alone. In New Jersey the state police revealed that 302 of 365 known runaways in 1970 traveled by thumbing rides. A spot check in that same state done on 100 persons picked up in the highways showed that one out of every three hitchhikers had a criminal record. About 5 per cent were wanted by the police. Everywhere degenerates are among both hitchikers and those who pick them up."

You did a real service by printing that column. Thank you. -----Connecticut Yankee

Dear Yankee: And you did a real service by sending that supportive material which gave me a second opportunity to make the point. Thank you.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze And You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

NEWKIRK, Okla (AP) — Dist. Court Judge Lester R. Maris ruled that Beth Lilley of the Arkansas City, Kan., Daily Traveler could not enter his courtroom because she was wearing a pantsuit.

Miss Lilley said she felt the ruling was not only discriminatory but "amounted to a supression of the news."

Judge Maris said later, "We have a rule in this courtroom that women wear dresses because we don't feel other attire meets the standards of dignity of this courtroom. We're sorry if this rule offends anyone, but we made that rule before pantsuits came in."

Asked whether the requirement of dresses for women included miniskirts, the judge replied, "We don't quibble about the length of a dress or skirt."

Dry Skin Can Be Home Treated

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If your skin resembles a withering apple at the end of winter, don't panic, advises cosmetologist Anna Crispen.

Overheated homes and outdoore cold are a bad combination, and even oily skin can flake from the cold.

A home treatment that is effective may require nothing more than moisture cream with an emollient cream over it, Mrs. Crispen says. It should be applied after the face has been cleansed and left on no longer than 20 minutes. It should then be tissued off. Heat helps open the pores so the best time to use it is when you are taking a hot bath, Mrs. Crispen advises.

If you use a moisturizer on your skin besure to remove it all before going out. The cream contains water which will freeze on your skin.

To activate moisture of the skin, Mrs. Crispen advises pinching the skin gently with the thumb and index finger. In addition, little muscles of the face must be exercised, since as one gets older the muscles shrink and the skin fits more loosely creating lines and wrinkles.

In her New York City studio, Mrs. Crispen may use machines such as a highly oxogenated vapor machine for deep pore cleansing, but her clients also are taught to take care of their skin at home.

"You can iron out some little wrinkles — at least they will not look so deep," she says. "Just take the palm of your hand and gently press it into your wrinkled forehead. And use your thumb to ease away that little line at your mouth...."

A grandmother, in her 50s, Mrs. Crispen looks years younger than her age and has a wrinkle-free skin. But she works at it, she says. She occasionally becomes aware of a line etching its way across her forehead, and she does what she calls "skull-lifting" exercises.

It is simple — you just think "up," she says. You make a great effort to try to lift your ears and forehead by trying to control the muscles. At first, the results are imperceptible, but it does work.

Mrs. Crispen's clients include women who merely need to learn how to take care of their skin properly. But emotional upset have an effect on the skin, and many of her patients are referred by psychiatrists.

Yet, the solution to many skin problems may be nothing more than a corrective diet, exercise, moisture, cleanliness. Even some jowls may be firmed without resorting to plastic surgery, she points out.

Protein — meat, fish, cheese — is essential to pretty skin. Mrs. Crispen has noticed that people who do not get enough protein have little criss-cross lines on their skin. Broken lines under the skin indicate a lack of Vitamin C and rough skin is attributed to a Vitamin A deficiency.

Many young people sent to her by psychiatrists have acne, she says, and their problem may be helped by a cleanliness routine. She relates to them because she, too, had that problem. It gave her, at 17, her interest in cosmetology in her native Austria.

Skin cleanliness is one of the biggest beauty problems, she explains. Young people learn that many people who spend a lot of money pampering their faces with cosmetics by day, go to bed without removing their makeup. This clogs the pores, and may trigger skin problems.

HELP FOR WINTER SKIN — In her New York studio, cosmetologist Anna Crispen uses machines for deep cleansing of the skin, but she wants her clients to learn to take care of their skin at home.

Churchill Pictures Go On Display

FULTON–A photographic display depicting the more than 60 years of Sir Winston Churchill's political life, has been made available by the British Government for exhibit in the Winston Churchill Memorial & Library on the Westminister College campus here.

The display has been placed in the center exhibition area of the Memorial's partially completed museum in connection with the observance of the 25th anniversary year of Churchill's famous "Sinews of Peace" address at Westminister. It was forwarded to the College by the British Government through the office of British Consul General S. C. Stout of St. Louis, and Consul General and Mrs. Stout were present when the exhibit was opened to the public.

Dr. Robert L. D. Davidson, president of Westminister College, and Neal S. Wood of St. Louis, a member of the Board of Trustees of Westminister and chairman of the Memorial's Board of Governors, were present to receive the exhibit. Both men have been awarded the Order of the British Empire by Queen Elizabeth II for the roles they have played in strengthening Anglo/American relations.

Churchill was first elected to the House of Commons in 1900, and he retired from Parliament in 1964. He served as British Prime Minister from 1940 to 1945, when he led his nation to victory over Hitler's Germany, and again from 1951 to 1955. He retained his seat in the House of Commons until 1964, when he retired from Commons Sir Winston died January 24, 1965, at the age of 90.

The display, complete with captions, consists of a series of mounted photographic material. The panels are three feet tall, and extend 62 feet in length. It has been incorporated with other special material relating to the 25th anniversary of the "Iron Curtain" address he delivered at Westminister March 5, 1946, and is entitled "Winston Churchill--Man of Destiny."

Virgil Johnston, director of affairs of the Memorial, also announced that the British Government had made available to the Memorial's library, 4883 8x10 Xeroxed pages of material taken from documents relating to Sir Winston's political career. The papers cover events that took place between 1901 and October, 1939, and have been added to material being assembled for the research library that will be open to scholars when the facilities are completed.

Centerpoint of the Memorial is the reconstructed Christopher Wren church of St. Mary, Aldermanbury. The ruins of this war-damaged 17th century church were moved stone by stone to the Westminister campus, so that the edifice might be reconstructed as a memorial to the famous British statesman.

Ouster of Sheriff Delayed

JEFFERSON CITY--Sheriff Clyde Orton of Pemiscot County has delayed his ouster from office, attorneys said Wednesday.

The Missouri Supreme Court on March 8 ordered him ousted, but Orton's request for a re-hearing of the case apparently has temporarily blocked the order from taking effect.

Normally the court waits 15 days to issue a mandate, or final order, after its ruling. That is to allow time for requests for rehearings.

The 15 days ended Wednesday with no final order from the court. Orton asked Monday for a rehearing, and a ruling on the request is pending in the high court.

Until the court issues its mandate, Orton remains in office, his attorney and officials in the attorney general's office said.

The court ordered Orton removed from office after finding him guilty of "wilful oppression and abuse of authority" and of "wilful misconduct and neglect of duty."

Orton failed to enforce gambling and liquor laws and threatened state liquor control agents from Mississippi when they were investigating in the southeast Missouri county, five Supreme Court judges ruled.

The final ouster order would clear the way for the Pemiscot County Court to call a special election to fill a vacancy in the sheriff's office.

Until the court rules on Orton's request for a re-hearing, action in the case is stalled.

Economic Outlook For Britain Bleak

By Editorial Research Reports

LONDON--When Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber presents the budget Tuesday, the only healthy aspect of the British economy will be the surplus in the balance of payments. Last year this reached $1.5 billion. Elsewhere, hard times have spread over the land. The Sunday Times warns that collapse of industrial investment is now rivaling wage inflation and unemployment for top place in the chancellor's problem list.

So black is the picture that Prime Minister Edward Heath complained on March 13 that the battle against inflation was "already half lost before we came to power." But blaming the Labor government is not enough. Heath and Barber must do something radical if Britain is not to be sucked into a funnel of recession. Everybody is giving them plenty of advice.

The National Institute of Economic and Social Research has proposed tax relief amounting to $1.2 billion. Easing the tax bite presumably would cut unemployment and stimulate investment. The Economist suggested editorially that in addition to cutting business taxation, Barber could lower interest rates -- now at record levels. And John Cockroft, writing in the Daily Telegraph claims that the chancellor is "left with no real choise but to concentrate his tax concessions on stimulating investment and on encouraging risk-taking, innovation and effort."

Budget Day is no longer the pompous, top hat-and-morning clothes affair it once was. In fact, the Tories are worried lest Anthony Barber fumble his delivery. Above all Britain needs a restoration of confidence, and the chancellor badly bungled his first speeches. Barber does not owe his job to economic expertise but to his role in bringing Heath to power last June.

Britain's economy, declared the Sunday Times, has been bedeviled by "miscalculation, timidity, and inconsistency." Most experts agree that over the last two years there has been excessive dependence on monetary policy to control the economy. Although Heath does not appear to believe in reflation now, economists are in agreement that taxes must come down. Between 1963 and 1970, Britain's tax revenue rose by over $1,200 per household. In fact, taxes are so high that most businessmen now prefer to buy government bonds offering 8¾ per cent annual interest than to risk their capital.

Dogs and cats see well, but they cannot see different colors, so they live in a world which is gray and drab.

Ambulance Service In Bootheel Talked

MALDEN — Members of the Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council (an advisory group to the Bootheel Economic Development Council at Malden) met last week in Malden with several State Officials and a representative group of operators of ambulances in the six - county area of the Bootheel.

Dr. John K. Wallace, M.D., Director of Emergency Medical Services of the Missouri Division of Health, presented the group with a report on the present status of ambulance services in the State. Donald O'Keane, Assistant to Dr. Wallace, explained some of the pending legislation now before the State Assembly dealing with ambulance care. He pointed out that Senate Bill 238 would regulate the quality of ambulance service in the State; while Senate Bill 108 would grant authority to local communities to establish Ambulance Districts if they should choose to do so.

The Rev. Fr. Wallace Ellinger, Chairman of the six county Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council, presiding at the meeting, pointed out that the consideration of the injured or sick individual must be of primary importance; likewise, the sense of security of the entire community knowing that adequate service is available for anyone who needs it. In addition, he pointed out, it is of great importance to consider the feelings of folks who have been providing this service in the communities, most of these have been funeral homes.

Bill Welborn, a staff member of BEDC, had previously done a bit of research at the request of the Health Council. He reported as follows: 30 questionnaires were sent out to ambulance operators in the six - county area; 21 were returned; 15 of the 21 were from firms already providing ambulance services; 4 questionnaires were returned from firms who had recently terminated their ambulance service; 13 firms now providing ambulance services thought their attendants were adequately trained; 2 firms had inadequate training; 2 firms now providing ambulance service indicated they were planning to expand in the next five years; 12 firms planned no expansion; no firm considered their ambulance service financially profitable; 15 firms considered it unprofitable and only remained in business as a public service; 11 of the ambulance services now operating plan to remain in operation through this year; 4 firms indicated thay did not plan to remain in the ambulance business for the next year; 11 firms now providing ambulance services indicated they would be in favor of a non-profit system of strategically located ambulance stations which would serve our six - county Bootheel area; 3 firms were "not sure;" 2 firms opposed the idea.

All present were impressed favorably with the action taken in Pemiscot County in April of 1970, when the County Hospital under the guidance of Jack Tipton established the Pemiscot County Ambulance Service. For some present this seems to be an ideal model at this time. It was noted that the Presiding Judge of Pemiscot County was recently quoted as having said that the County Court is "well satisfied" with its operation although it is losing money.

O'Keane presented an approach to solving the ambulance situation in the Bootheel area through communities developing mutual assistance agreements. "The cost of ambulance services can be drastically cut through a coordinated approach to solving this problem" he said. "I feel that one method of obtaining this coordination is through the Comprehensive Health Planning Council." The State Division of Health is willing to assist the Bootheel area in purchasing equipment and providing advance training thru the University of Missouri Medical Center for personnel." Included among the equipment that might be able to be offered, would be 19 fully equipped ambulances and supporting communications equipment which could be secured by raising one -third of the needed funds locally and two- thirds which would come from the State.

Hints on Diet for Those Who Eat Out

COLUMBIA — The bachelor who can't or won't cook, and the traveling salesman who eats most of his meals on the road may be headed for heart trouble, says the Missouri Heart Association.

A diet emphasizing foods rich in saturated fats and cholesterol -- the bacon -and -eggs, hamburger -and -French fries, meat -with -gravy and coffee - with - cream route followed by so many who constantly eat out, can speed the development of hardening of the arteries.

Usually, says the Missouri Heart Association, the items mentioned above are loaded with animal (saturated) fats and/or cholesterol, which influence coronary artery disease, the forerunner of heart attack. Clearly, the bachelor or salesman is on a spot. However, moderate changes in eating habits may get him off it.

The Missouri Heart Association, therefore, offers this heart- helping advice, which applies to anyone who eats out often:

1. Go easy on the roll and biscuit basket. Commercial types usually are made with butter, eggs, whole milk, cream or other saturated fats.

2. Ask your waitress for margarine instead of butter. Margarine and most vegetable oils contain polyunsaturated fats, which can help lower cholesterol blood levels.

3. Ask your waitress to load up the appetizer tray. You'll relish nibbling all you want on celery, carrots, radishes, scallions, pickles and the like.

4. You also can have your fill of salads, prividing you use oil and vinegar dressing. It's tasty and your salad will have neither saturated fat nor cholesterol.

5. For the main course, concentrate on lean meats, fish and poultry, baked, broiled or roasted. if a sauce is served on your meat, scrape it off. Remove the skin from the turkey and chicken, to avoid most of the fowl fat.

6. If you like milk, try skim milk, or buttermilk and yogurt made from skim milk. You can have cocoa made with low-fat milk.

7. Naturally, you should avoid or eat sparingly of rich desserts. What's left? A large variety of fresh fruit, or canned fruit without added sugar, gelatin fruit whip, puddings if mady with low -fat milk, ice milk and sherbet in moderation.

Diet alone won't reduce the risk of heart attack, or of stroke, which follows the fat - clogging of an artery to the brain. Other important risk factors to control include high blood pressure, cigarette smoking, sedentary living, excess weight and other disease states such as diabetes.

For more information on diet, ask the Missouri Heart Association for the pamphlet "The Way to A Man's Heart." The Association also can provide information about the other risk factors.

Route 49 Job Okayed

The Missouri state highway commission has approved final location and preliminary design details for route 49 in Wayne county.

Commission action followed advertisement for a public hearing at which no one representing the general public attended. The proposed improvement begins on route 49, ¼ mile west of route A in Williamsville and proceeds in an easterly direction, ¾ mile.

The commission determined that the recommended location and design would best serve the interests of the public.

W. H. Shaw, district engineer, indicated final design would be completed followed by acquisition of necessary right-of-way. The improvement will then be placed under contract subject to the availability of funds.

Shaw stated the proposed improvement will include replacing the low-water crossing on Williams Creek with an all-weather structure.

Stoddard Only Commodity County

BLOOMFIELD — The Scott County Court has unanimously approved the food stamp program for Scott County to replace the commodities program.

Court officials said that it will take a minimum of eight months before food stamps are begun.

Scott County joins Dunklin, Pemiscot, Mississippi and New Madrid Counties in adopting the food stamp program. Stoddard County is the only county in the six county Bootheel area that will not have this program due to Presiding Judge Ermer Garner asking the state director of the program to disregard the application signed in 1970 by Presiding Judge Clyde Henson and Associate Judge Leffler Lee for the stamp program.

The waiting list of counties requesting adoption of the stamps includes 12 to 14 counties. Each of them will be considered before Scott as it takes about a year.

The stamp program is federally financed for people on welfare, elderly people and persons who have inadequate funds to feed their families. The stamp program allows eligible recipients to obtain any food they choose, except imports at reduced cost and improve their diets. It is estimated that about $75,000 a month would be spent in Stoddard County to provide food for these families.

Also the county could save the cost of storage and distribution personnel salaries for the commodity program. Eligibility for food stamps is determined by the Missouri Division of Welfare, based on family income. It is estimated that 30 percent of the commodities are thrown away.

Under the food stamp program a family of four earning $360 a month could buy $106 worth of food stamps (redeemable at any store) for $82; a family of six earning $360 could buy $144 worth of stamps for $96; a family of seven can buy $162 for only $104; a family of eight could buy $180 worth of stamps for $106.

3 Quints Die But Mother Keeps Faith

LOS ANGELES (AP)–A 25-year-old housewife who gave birth to quintuplets says she still believes in fertility drugs for childless couples, although only two of the infants have survived.

"I think it's marvelous to have babies and if that's the only way you can, I'd recommend it even if they live or die or if you only have one baby," said Pearl Kaplan.

Two of Mrs. Kaplan's 10-week premature baby daughters died Wednesday from what doctors called respiratory failure. Another quint, the only boy, was stillborn.

Nixon Accused Of Stopping Highway Work

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)--The president of the Missouri State Building and Construction Trades Council Wednesday accused President Nixon of putting a stop to all highway construction in Missouri on which federal funds are used.

The president, Rep. Thomas A. Walsh, D--St. Louis, said in a statement that when Nixon suspended the Davis-Bacon Act the federal prevailing wage law "he resorted to a means which is designed to punish labor--not to correct economic problems.

"Our highway commission is in the position of not being able to sign contracts containing the prevailing wage clause since that would cause a loss of federal highway funds forthe projects, and not being able to sign contracts without the prevailing wage clause, since that would be a violation of state law.

Recently, Missouri Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth advised Robert L. Hyder, chief counsel of the Missouri Highway Commission, that the suspension of the Davis-Baxon Act also suspended Missouri's prevailing wage law.

Under the law, a contractor must pay the wage scales on public works as agreed upon for the area in which the work is being done.

Quarantine off Cyst Nematode

WASHINGTON(AP)--A federal quarantine involving soy bean cyst nematodes has been lifted, the Agriculture Department announced Wednesday.

The quarantine had restricted the interstate movement from designated areas of soil, root crops, soil-moving equipment and other items that might have spread the pest.

Officials said the nematode, a tiny soil parasite, now has spread through most areas where soybeans are grown but that the pest can be controlled by crop rotations.

Others voting for the funding included McClellan of Arkansas, Allott and Dominick of Colorado and Bellmon of Oklahoma and Curtis and Hruska of Nebraska.

Voting against were Fulbright of Arkansas, Harris of Oklahoma, Hughes and Miller of Iowa and Stevenson and Percy of Illinois.

Mail Box

Dear Charles,

March 15, 1971

Thanks a lot for again sending me a copy of the Standard's Progress Edition. I am always interested in seeing how the other half lives! And in looking over the various new homes I see that the Blanton family lives high on the hog (if you will pardon such an expression). I was particulary impressed by the description of the master bathroom -- pool shaped tub enclosed in marble with gold fixtures and a gold chandelier. If you had only had that on your Canadian trip your early morning visits might have been a little more pleasant, if not any more productive!

From the C.L. Blanton III name I am aware that it is not you who calls this home, but it quite apparent it is in the family, and perhaps your own equals this.

I often think of our trip together that year and have never ceased to marvel how we all came through it alive and on both feet. In my column in my old paper (which I still write each week) I have been giving my readers a review of that trip during the past few weeks and it served to bring back many memories to me, some of which had been put on paper and some not.

I spend most of my time now caring for my wife who had a stroke two years ago, doing housework, cooking, etc. It's not the kind of retirement we planned on, but it's what we have, and it works pretty well.

Sincerely,
Stewart

P.S.--Also A clip

from my column about your special edition.

G.S. Bennett

The first portion of this column this week will be a sort of sequel to those of the past two or three weeks, when I was describing my trip in the Province of Ontario in 1955 as one of a party of about 30 U.S. newpapermen who were guest of the Province's Department of Travel and Publicity.

One of our group, who became better known during our trip than some of the others, was Charlie Blanton of Sikeston, Missouri. He was everpresent, ready to lead in any special doings that were inaugurated and was generally the life of the party. He was the head of the Daily Standard of Sikeston. Each year the paper published a greatly enlarged edition, which is titled the "Progress Edition." Ever since our trip, Charlies has each year sent me a copy of this special edition, and this year's copy just came a couple of days ago.

From general information in the special edition, I would say that Sikeston is a city somewhere in size between Bennington and Rutland. The paper has circulation of about 10.000 (and this special edition carried 120 pages). It is the center of quite an industrial area, that is growing each year. The Welcome Wagon Club counted nearly 270 new families in the community in 1970.

The special edition carried a great number of pictures of new homes and businesses in the community during the year. I would guess that more than 100 new homes were pictured and an article states that publishers realized that by no means all the new places were shown. Of these new homes shown nearly every one was a ranch type, that is all one floor.

This is always an interesting edition and I am glad to have the opportunity of seeing what is going on in this midwestern city. I think that other membes of the Blanton family now have active charge of the paper, but I am sure that my friend Charlie still has a firm hand on the helm of the business.

Mr. Charlie Blanton,
and Staff
The Sikeston Standard,
Your Issue of 3/20th,

Poor Charley Says:— And I say, how dumb can some intelligent heads of our Government display.

I quote:— Mr. Milton Eisenhower, chairman of the National committee on the causes and prevention of violence has spoken,

Sayeth he:— Ownership of handguns by individual citizens is so dangerous that it must be a National policy to eliminate them.

I quote:— I wonder if Mr. Eisenhower really believes, that if such law is passed, that the underground, such as those whos desire, and intentions are to destroy our beloved AMERICA, and our way of life which we cherish, and must protect, not by sending our Boy's over seas to die for no aparent reason to do so, only to create more hateret toward our beloved U.S.A., but to try to be friends to all Nations, stay at home, tend to own affairs, but be well prepaired.

NOW! Is it possible that Mr. Eisenhower really believes that the criminals in our land, inspired by the Communist heads of their Countries, would flock to the required destinations to turn in their fire arms etc? NO INDEED THEY WOULD NOT, and how would Mr. Eisenhower force them to do so, if our Government is unable to stop their criminal action?

The law abiding Citizens of our beloved Country, have, and will continue to have handguns etc., for their own protection, of life and property, the time does not seem far off, when we will be forced to stand on our own hind legs, in order to get results, since we can not be protected by guards, who's salaries are paid by the tax payers.

HUD Okays Renewal Outlay

CHARLESTON — Approval of Charleston's $3,564,762 urban renewal grant by the Department of Housing and Urban Development in Washington was announced Wednesday by Senators Stuart Symington and Thomas Eagleton and Congressman Bill Burlison.

A telegram from Senator Symington's office to The Enterprise - Courier was received at 4:30 p.m., stating that the reservation of a grant in that amount has been approved. It will be used for planning, land clearance and redevelopment, and modernization of public facilities in the Charleston urban renewal area.

According to City Manager Dick Martin, the normal procedure once the grant reservatinon is made is for HUD to advance funds for hiring a local planning staff. The initial planning grant applied for was about $250,000.

The urban renewal area as designated by the local board and approved by the City Council is now eligible for land clearance and redevelopment once the final plan is prepared and approved. General boundaries of the renewal area are as follows: Starting at Main and Marshall Streets, go east to First, down First to Court, down the alley beside the library to Franklin and north to the railroad track, follow the railroad track to a point behind Charleston Auction Co., and go south to Marshall, down Marshall to Elm, zigzag eastward to Main and return to Marshall.

Charleston voters approved establishment of the local land clearance for redevelopment authority (urban renewal board) by a 6-1 margin in February, 1970, after an information campaign carried out by Mr. Martin and other interested persons. Preparation of the final plan is expected to take at least another year, before actual clearance operations could begin, according to sources on the urban renewal board.

House Defeats Bill to Extend PSC Authority

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House Wednesday defeated a bill that would have extended to the State Public Service Commission authority to regulate safety standards on lines of municipal or cooperative power companies.

The vote was 73-64.

On unanimous votes the House sent to the Senate a package of three bills setting up a narcotics and drug abuse code. It provides for penalties against peddlers of drugs and narcotics, education of those who might engage in drug buse and either voluntary or court ordered commitment of addicts.

It makes possession of a small amount of marijuana a misdemeanor instead of a felony.

Other bills sent to the Senate would:

Prohibit the business of strikebreaking or the transportation of strikebreakers.

Provide unemployment compensation for employes who are out of work because of a lockout.

Permit earlier adoption of abandoned children.

East Prairie Seniors Chosen For Tour

EAST PRAIRIE — Two East Prairie high school seniors have been selected to tour Europe this summer with the "Young Americans in Concert."

Miss Marlys Davis and Steve England were selected for the touring company on the basis of competitive auditions in which young singers from all over the United States participated.

Both active in choral and band programs at East Prairie High School, the two students will spend a total of 28 days in Europe, with stops in London, Paris, Rome, Zurich, Brussels and Vienna.

Their tour starts with a concert at Carnegie Hall in New York City. After this concert the group will fly to Washington, D. C. for a performance before starting their European tour.

The "Young Americans" will be touring with an orchestra, also made up of high school students.

Miss Davis and England both plan to pursue musical careers after leaving high school. Marlys, a student of Mrs. Carl Muench of Charleston, plans to attend SEMo State College as a scholarship student, and Steve, who studies with Gordon Beaver of Sikeston will attend Missouri University, Columbia, on a music scholarship.

Marlys is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Davis, and Steve is the son of Mrs. Joan England and the late Charles England.

Steve's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson of Charleston.

Orioles, Reds Having Problems

Any resemblance between the Baltimore Orioles and Cincinnati Reds of today and those of last October's World Series is purely coincidental.

The Orioles'—problems are strictly on the field, where they dropped their fifth in a row Sunday, losing to the Atlanta Braves 4-3. Newly acquired Pat Dobson, who is supposed to be the Birds' fourth 20-game winner, bore the brunt of the Braves' attack. He was tagged for 11 hits, including three singles apiece by Mike Lum and Clete Boyer and a double and single by Ralph Garr.

The Reds won their game, edging Pittsburgh 5-4 by scoring a run on three singles in the last of the ninth after Al Oliver's homer tied the score in the top of the inning. The already injury-riddled National League champs lost catcher Johnny Bench for a day or so with bruised finger when he was struck by a pitch from Bob Moose.

In addition to center fielder Bobb Tolan and shortstop Dave Concepcion, who are on the disabled list, the Reds announced that pitcher Wayne Simpson and possibly left-hander Jim Merritt would remain in Florida for more warm-weather work when the Big Red Machine limps north.

Both had arm trouble late last season and it has continued this spring.

The st. Louis Cardinals' stars were in fine shape, though. Joe Torre belted three home runs and fireballing Bob Gibson hurled five scoreless innings in a 13-2 rout of Minnesota.

The Boston Red Sox, usually death on left-halders at friendly Fenway Park, worked a little of their magic on Detroit southpaw Fred Scherman. George Scott slammed two homers and Reggie Smith and Billy Congligharo in a 5-3 triumph.

Twelfth-inning doubles by Donn Clendenon and Ken Singleton-the latter a fly ball misplayed by outfielders Bobby Murcer and Danny Cater-accounted for three runs as the New York Mets defeated the New York Yankees 5-2 and squared their spring subway series at one game apiece.

Mike Epstein homered and shortstop Toby Harrah started a triple play and two DPs as the Washington Senators downed Kansas City 4-2.

The Philadelphia Phillies ripped ace reliever Wilbur Wood for four runs in the ninth, including Bobby Pfeils's two-run double, and overtook, the Chicago White Sox 7-6.

Cleveland's Sudden Sam McDowell was raked for 10 runs and 10 hits in four innings—including a three-run double by Ernie Banks—in a 154 romp for the Chicago Cubs.

On the other hand, there were two shutouts. Juan Marichal and Jerry Johnson combined for a seven-hitter as the San Francisco Giants blanked California 2-0. And Houston's Denny Lemaster and New York's Gary Waslewski yielded one hit apiece as a combined squad of Astros, Yankees and Braves nipped Montreal 1-0.

Veteran Dick Ellsworth pitched seven strong innings in a 7-2 triumph for the Milwaukee Brewers over Japan's Tokyo Lotte Orions. The Los Angeles Dodgers scored a pair of eight-inning runs on Willie Davis' single, a double by Wes Parker and Bill Buckner's single and shaded Houston 3-1. Rookie Dave Robinson singled home the tying and lead runs in the eighth inning and San Diego beat Oakland 6-4.

IF THE FIRST WEEK of Wal-Marts fishing contest is any indication of the size of fish yet to come, some state records might be in jeopardy. Saturday, Gary Teeters of Parma brought in a seven pound, five ounce large mouth bass that he caught at Wappappello Lake while fishing with his brother, Darrell, both pictured. Mike Fansler of the Wal-Mart sporting goods department, is at right. "I was coasting into the bank in about four or six feet of water when I hung the bass," Teeters recalled. He caught it on Maraboo with pork rind.

Portlak Accepts Invitation

MARSHALL — Ed Portlak of the Kansas City Chiefs has accepted an invitation to conduct a football clinic at the third Missour Special Olympics.

"The football clinic will be just one of the features of this year's Special Olympics, which will take place June 18-19 at Missouri Valley College in Marshall," said Issam B. Amary, Olympics director.

"There will be clinics in other sports, conducted by well-known persons in the sports world. There will be the usual competitive track and field events, and there will be a banquet and dance for the retarded persons from all over the state who will participate."

Amary explained that the Special Olympics program is sponsored internationally by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation in order to provide an incentive for the development of physical fitness among retarded persons. The Olympics program offers an opportunity for retarded person to compete against others of similar age and ability levels in carefully supervised games and skills.

"We've had two years in which to gain experience in managing this program," said Mr. Amary. "We feel that the 1972 program will truly be a success."

Information can be obtained by writing to Mr. Amary at the Marshall State School and Hospital, Marshall, or by writing to the administrators of any of the regional diagnostic clinics.

SEMO State Sets Cage Invitational

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A two-day holiday invitational basketball tournament will be hosted by Southeast Missouri State College next Dec. 17 and 18, it was disclosed today by Southeast Missouri's head coach, Bob Cradic, who recently completed his first year as head coach at the college.

Three Tennessee teams will provide the opposition for the Indians in the tourney which will be called the Girardeau Classic. Cradic identified the schools as Christian Brothers College of Memphis, Austin Peay State University of Clarksville, and the University of Tennessee -- Martin.

The tournament will be held at Houck Field House on the Southeast Missouri campus.

The Indians will also play a regular season game in Cape Girardeau with CBC and a regular season game on the road at UT-Martin.

Cradic said next season's basketball schedule is rapidly taking shape with only some minor shuffling left to do. One major change will be a preponderance of games at home early in the season.

The season just completed saw the Indians on the road for seven of their first nine games, and their record dipped to 6-9 before a late spurt brought about the final mark of 13-10. It was the first winning year for Southeast Missouri cagers since 1966-67.

Besides CBC and UT-Martin, other new opponents on the Indians' schedule for next year will be Southern Illinois University — Edwardsville and possibly Southeastern Louisiana.

Missing for the first time in several years will be Washington University of St. Louis, Arkansas State University of Jonesboro, and Eastern Illinois University of Charleston.

The holiday tournament will be the first ever attempted exclusively by Southeast Missouri. However, the college did host the old MIAA holiday tournament in past year.

The Indians have a 1-1 record against Austin Peay, a NCAA University Division team and member of the Ohio VAlley Conference. They are 7-2 against UT-Martin. Available records show no previous games between Southeast Missouri and CBC.

BHS Short On Experience

BLOOMFIELD---Coach Ken Davis has only four lettermen returning to his high school baseball squad, which finished 10-4 last season.

Paul Marion, the leading hitter, who plays centerfield and also pitches, will be expected to carry most of the offensive load for the Wildcats.

Outside of these men the coach faces a rebuilding year. Others expected to make the team are Dennis Hutchinson, Willie Chasteen, Steve Bowling, Jerry Curd, Chuck Chism, Dennis Young, Dennis Singleton, Eddie Bresee, Van Pounds, Ricky Underwood, and Mike Bell.

The entry fee is $10 per person per event and all applicants must submit certified scores based on 100 targets for classification purposes. Postal scores and/or regional meet scores are acceptable.

The tournament will consist of 100 targets of International Skeet, 100 targets of Modified Claybird, 200 targets of 12-Gauge Skeet and 200 targets of 16-Yard Trap. The actual competition will be fired on Saturday, May 8, and Sunday, May 9, with Friday, May 7, given over to registration and practice shooting. All individual and team awards will be based on the total of 100 International-type targets and the 200 American-type targets in the trap and skeet events. Winchester-Western will provide shotguns as prizes for the high gun awards in American-type trap and skeet, and NRA International shooting medals will be given to the top three shooters in both International Skeet and Modified Claybird. First— and second-place trophies will be awarded in team events and in all classifications in individual American-style trap and skeet events, to individual winners in International-style trap and skeet events and to women shooters in all events. Additionally, Winchester-Western Blue Ribbon patches will be awarded to all winning teams and individual champions. Winchester long-run patches and NRA International Skeet and International Claybird straight patches will be presented to all those shooters who qualify.

Accomodations Available

Each participant is responsible for reserving his own living quarters for the weekend. However, this is not expected to be a problem as Linn Creek is located in the Osage Beach section of the popular Lake of the Ozarks resort area and ample accomodations will be available. In addition, the Missouri Trap Association will have a large tenting area on its shooting grounds and both the Hettrick Manufacturing Company and the Turner Corporation will provide tents, propane stoves and lanterns free of charge to those who wish to use this area. Sanitary facilities will also be provided but each camper will be responsible for his own meals and bedding.

Olympic Shooters

The Annual Intercollegiate Trap and Skeet Tournament was instituted by Winchester-Western in 1969 with its objective to develop students to represent the United States in Olympic trap and skeetcompetitions. According to Jim Dee, recreational shooting and marksmanship manager for Winchester-Western, the idea was spawned when skeet was added to the Olympic field events for the first time during the 1968 games in Mexico City.

The 1969 tournament marked the first time that a national representation of college students met in shoulder-to-shoulder competition involving both American- and International-style trap and skeet shooting. During the first two years, the competition was conducted at the University Gun Club in Tiffin, Iowa, and was hosted by the University of Iowa. Since that time, interest in the event has so increased that many schools are conducting regional tournaments in their own areas.

Shooting and Hunting Education Program

The Intercollegiate Trap and Skeet Tournament is one of several activities conducted by Mr. Dee as director of Winchester-Western's shooting and hunting recreation program. This program was developed by Winchester-Western for the purpose of increasing interest in recreational shooting on the college level. Included among its other activities are a series of clinics in the shooting sports which are conducted as part of the national program of the Lifetime Sports Education Project, a division of the National Education Association.

As a direct result of the Winchester-Western shooting and hunting education program, 230 American colleges and universities are now involved in intercollegiate trap and skeet competitions.

Dexter Golfers Head SEMO State Team

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Coach Carroll Williams of Southeast Missouri State College has reduced his golf roster to 13, and the team is preparing for its season opening round Tuesday (March 30) against Arkansas State University in Jonesboro.

Williams and company have a ready-made goal for the season--improve upon last spring's dismal 2-9 dual record and last place finish in the MIAA.

The golf roster lists six players who were around last year, but only three of them are among the frontrunners at present, according to Williams. The three are junior Dave Agey of Dexter, senior Francis Gagnepain of Perryville, and senior Paul Smith.

Actually it is the "new blood" which gives Williams cause to believe his squad may improve upon last season's mark.

For example, Patton, though listed as a newcomer, played two years for Southeast Missouri and has returned to the squad after a stint in the service. And Hundelt turned down a golf scholarship at the University of Missouri--St. Louis in order to attend college away from home.

Following Tuesday's match, the Indians will journey to Memphis, Tenn., April 7 to play Hope College and Southwestern of Memphis.

Their first of only two matches at home will not come until April 19 when they entertain Arkansas State.

Williams has had great difficulty scheduling home matches due to the fact that country club facilities are not available, and the Southeast Missouri team's home course is the nine-hole Cape Jaycees Public Golf Course.

Lowe New Chairman Of Athletic Committee

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Henry T. Lowe, professor of law, was appointed chairman of the committee on intercollegiate athletics at the University of Missouri -Columbia today by Interim-Chancellor Herbert W. Schooling.

Lowe will succeed Dean Pinkney C. Walker, on leave of absence as a member of the Federal Power Commission in Washington.

The athletic committee is the administrative agency of the UMC athletic program and is composed of faculty-alumni members. Lowe has been a committee member along with Walker, Dean Arthur Nebel, Dean Bob G. Woods, Prof. Richard S. Kirkendall, and alumni Jim W. Farley of Farley, Jack Senter of Kansas City, and Fred Mayer of St. Louis.

Henry Lowe

Lowe has been a member of the UMC law faculty since 1959. He is a graduate of Colorado College and Harvard University. He was in general law practive for six years in Portland, Ore. Recently he was named James Lewis Parks professor of law, one of the named professorships created after a gift from the Dorothy H. and Lewis Rosenstiel foundation.

"As you know, the athletic program is in many ways the most sensitive operation on the campus," Chancellor Schooling wrote Lowe in confirming his appointment. "For this reason the chairmanship of the committee on athletics is a most important post."

Dean Walker had been serving as committee chairman this year when he relieved, upon request, Dean Nebel to enable Nebel to continue in the demanding duties as faculty representative to the Big Eight conference.

Torre Hikes Figures

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)--The St. Louis Cardinals tagged starter Luis Tiant for two quick runs in the first inning Sunday, then kept up the pressure to defeat the Minnesota Twins, 13-2, in exhibition baseball.

The Redbirds' Joe Torre chalked up three homers, the first one good for two runs in the first inning.

Torre connected with a drive over the right field fence in the third and hit another two-run blast in the sixth inning.

Cardinals ace Bob Gibson turned in five innings of score-less pitching to win the one-sided contest.

Torre's strong hitting brought his average to .354 in spring training and helped St. Louise move to a 12-11 record in Florida.

The Twins, defending champions of the American League's Western Division, dropped to 9-12 in preseason play.

St. Louis taces Minnesota again today in a game at the Twins' camp in Orlando, Fla.

ASU Cage Camps Set

JONESBORO---The fifth annual ASU Basketball Camp For Boys has been expanded to five weekly sessions and begins June 27 on the campus of Arkansas State University.

Camp director Lavaughn Robertson, assistant coach of basketball at Arkansas State, said boys entering the 8th to 12th grades are eligible to participate. Tuition is $50 per week and includes room and board.

Matthews Fourth in 60-Dash

COLUMBIA--Kansas City Central rolled up 32 points to take its seventh class L indoor track title in nine years Saturday at Brewer fieldhouse. Soldan's Tigers wound up second with 25 and pre-meet favorite Sumner was third with 12.

Sikeston High's David Matthews placed fourth in the 60-yard dash during Satuday's running of the state indoor Class L track meet, posting a 6.5 time and giving Southeast Missouri its only points in the meet.

Indian Notes

--Southeast Missouri scored 1997 points during the season, and their opponents had the same combined total. This was enough for the Indians to lead the MIAA in per game average scoring, but it was also the second highest per game average allowed opponents by loop teams. Only Lincoln University of Jefferson City allowed the opposition more points per game -- 09.8. And the Tigers won but six contests all winter.

--Two of the top five scorers in the MIAA were Southeast Missouri Indians. They were Jim Anderson of Schererville, Ind., who had a 23.1 average to top the league, and Andrew Reid of St. Louis who, thanks to a late season spurt, finished with a 16.2 per game average.

--Reid was also second in the conference in field goal accuracy, hitting 50.5 per cent of his shots, a figure topped only by the University of Missouri--Rolla's Rich Peters, who was accurate with 51.7 per cent of his shots. The 6-5 junior was also the third best rebounder in the league with a 10.3 per game average, slightly less than the 12.2 rebounding average of Charles Currie of Northeast Missouri State College, Kirksville.

--They say basketball's a game for the tall man now. But Reid, at 6-5, stands two inches taller than any of the other players named to the first team All -MIAA squad.

--Junior Mike Payne of Zalma hit 86.2 per cent of his free throws to lead the MIAA. It would have been good enough for national ranking but for the fact that Payne did not shoot the minimum number required by the NCAA to be included in the national stats. Even so, the 5-11 guard helped preserve several Indian victories with his eagle eye at the line.

Moral: Statistics don't always tell the story -- at least notthe whole story.

Coach Marvin Rosengarten, a 1955 graduate of Southeast Missouri, is strictly a team man when it comes to his sport -- track.

Many colleges and coaches seem to focus on their outstanding individuals, who travel around entering meets in all parts of the country and shooting for national record.

But talk to Rosengarten about track, and most of the conversation is in terms of the team. Not that the Indians don't have outstanding individuals, but it is the team aspect of the sport which the Indian head man emphasizes.

The only Southeast Missouri outdoor track and field record which has not been broken in the last five years is the long jump, set by some fellow named McLane who leaped 23 feet, 6½ inches back in 1938.

Of the Indians' other records, one was set in 1966, two in 1967, five in 1968, nine in 1969, and five in 1970.

(* * *

By all measures except class rank, Larry Williams of Chaffee is the "senior" member of the Southeast Missouri golf team. He's a retired serviceman now in his freshman year at the college. "And he's a pretty fair golfer," says golf coach Carroll Williams.

Reflections on a 13-10 season, and facts gleaned from the final MIAA basketball statistics:

--Southeast Missouri had a better overall team field goal shooting percentage than any other member of the conference: 44.4. But the Indians' opponents, on the whole, also shot better (47.0) than did opponents against other league teams, causing coach Bob Cradic to remark, "I've never had a season when the opposing teams shot so well.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Johnny Unitas scholarships will be presented tonight to five Baltimore high school seniors—William Brusilow, Gilman School; Paul Ellis, McDonogh School; Harold P. The scholarship fund is set up in the name of the Baltimore Colts' quarterback by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Tax Relief for Elderly Wins Committee Vote

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)–A bill to give property tax relief for senior citizens was approved Tuesday night by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The bill, referred to as the "circuit breaker," would give a credit of up to $300 on homestead owned or rented by Missourians past 65 years of age.

The proposal calls for those qualified to pay the tax, then file for a rebate on his annual state income tax return. Rep. Jack J. Schramm, D-St. Louis, is sponsor of the bill.

At another committee hearing, Paul Williams, legal assistant for Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, explained a bill to clean up election campaigns and put a lid on campaign spending.

But the House Elections Committee took no action on the proposal.

Williams called the measure, sponsored jointly by Democratic floor leader Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis and Rep. Don Gralike, D-St. Louis, a "top priority item" of the governor's. He said the proposal would make it impossible for a candidate to plead ignorance of advertising since it calls for his signature on the ads. This also would eliminate the candidate's denial of any knowledge of ads saying friends picked up the tab for advertising.

"This would make the outright purchase of an office impossible," Williams said.

In other committee action Tuesday night, the House Ways and Means Committee heard testimony on a revenue-sharing bill which would raise the sales tax from three to five cents on a dollar and rebate the increase to cities and counties.

Rep. Eugene Mazzuca, D-St. Louis, said the cities and counties would receive the money from the state on a population basis plus what he called the "urban crisis" factor. Mazzuca took the position that the urban areas are facing a greater financial need than rural ones.

He predicted the increase would produce $244 million to share with cities and counties and, at the same time, add $28 million to the state.

About $45 million would be gained by exemptions Mazzuca's bill proposes to delete. Under his bill, charitable and not-for-profit institutions would no longer be allowed sales and use tax exemptions.

Mazucca said they were allowed only property tax exemption under the constitution and should pay sales tax.

He offered the committee an amendment taking out a section which would tax newsprint. He said he based this on an opinion from the attorney general.

No action was taken on the proposal.

Oil and Water Mix at Rolla

ROLLA -- This is the age for mixing oil and water.

Frequent oil spills have taken their tolls on both the east and west coasts of the United States. To help take care of the matter when an oil spill occurs, research is going on in a University of Missouri - Rolla mechanical engineering project.

Drs. Ronald Reisbig and Darryl Alofs in the department are studying the effect of waves on oil spill movements. Their theoretical calculations indicate that waves affect the movements of an oil spill to about the same degree as does the wind. Studies measure the rate at which the waves make the oil slick move.

These experiments are conducted in a wave tank that is equipped with a wave generator. The goal is to determine a way to calculate the time slicks will arrive at certain points and to track down the slicks' points of origin.

"The ability to accurately predict the spreading and migration of oil films," researchers say, "is necessary for the effective mobilization of available clean -up resources. Conversely, in the event that no party admits to spilling the oil, the predictive ability could be used as legal evidence of financial responsibility for the damages caused by an oil spill."

The research is sponsored by the United States Coast Guard.

Self-Service Gasoline Stations Gain Popularity

NEW YORK (AP) — In somewhat the same manner as self-service laundries caught on in the immediate post-World War II years and automatic carwashers some years later, self-service gasoline stations now show signs of growing popularity.

There is little evidence yet of a business boom, the statistics are beginning to look very bullish.

In 1969 there were about 2,500 such stations, according to industry sources. Now the figure is estimated to be probably as high as 7,500, out of a national total of 220,000 stations.

In addition, several big name companies now are taking the development more seriously than just a few years ago, when most of the stations were manned by small proprietors, including many grocers.

The greatest activity so far has been in the West and South, and the chief reason given for acceptance there generally involve the availability and cost of labor, remote locations and entrepreneurial spirit.

For the proprietor, self-service is a labor-saving device, but for the customer it is hardly that. More accurately, the selfservice station is a labor-transfer device, relieving the seller of chores by passing them on the the buyer.

This concept, ingenious in its simplicity, already has rewarded many thousands of small businessmen who note that while labor for hire costs money, customer labor often is plentiful, inexpensive, uncomplaining and easily exploited.

Consider this suggestive copy that Jersey Standard's subsidiary, AMF Tel Tron, uses to sell its story in the rapidly growing South California market, and then judge for yourself if customer labor pays off:

"About 35 per cent (of installations) are convenience stores with a couple of pumps or more outside as an extra business. Some of these stores are pumping enough gasoline to clear $500 profit per month. This rate would pay for equipment in less than a year.

"The only work of the owner or operator is to fill the water squirter once a day and install a fresh supply of wiper towels."

Broadly speaking, two types are being used. In one, the flow of fuel is controlled from within the store by an electric device. The customer fills up and then comes in to pay.

In the other, a money counter is attached to the pump, restricting the flow to the amount paid for.

Two serious drawbacks involve the law and social custom.

Up, Up and Away Go Air Fare Rates

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON--Higher air fares on flights across the North Atlantic go into effect April 1. They remain in effect until March 31.

If you're planning to take the wife and kids on that long-promised trip to Europe this summer, fasten your seatbelts. Economy and excursion fares are going up on flights across the North Atlantic. The increases average about 8 per cent depending on the type of flight and when you leave home.

International airlines are hiking fares in hopes of offsetting the deficits threatening to send them into a tail spin. Pan American reports that a 17-28 day round trip excursion fare between New York and London this summer will cost between $322 and $382. Previous fares were from $300 to $350 for a 14-28 day trip.

The fare increases will provide about $38 million in additional revenues for Pan American and Trans World Airlines. An official of the International Air Transport Association, which has 107 members,* said the boosts are not across the board. Fare increases on longer runs will be less, he said, ranging from 3 per cent on a New York to Rome flight to 1 per cent on a New York to Istanbul trip.

The airlines problems stem from a combination of high financing and operating costs, and dwindling traffic due to the recession. Ironically, the 350-seat Boeing 747 jets increased passenger capacity at the very time passenger growth was declining. The Air Transport Association has estimated that during 1970, the increase in revenue passenger miles -- international and domestic -- was only 4.8 per cent. This was less than half the 1969 increase.

Transatlantic travel has been growing by leaps and bounds. The I. A. T. A. reports that 7,201,789 passengers flew across the North Atlantic last year on scheduled flights of member airlines -- an increase of 20.1 per cent over 1969. This, in turn, was 14 per cent higher than in 1968. Estimates on boosts in fares over recent years are hard to come by, but an I.A.T.A. spokesman thought they might average 5 to 7 per cent.*

To combat declining revenues, Pan American has undertaken a study of its routes aimed at increasing profits.* "We may have to take drastic steps -- suspension, termination, sale of routes, even," Najeeb E. Halaby, the firm's president, has declared.

The Civil Aeronautics board voted 3-2 to approve the increase in international fares, with the dissenters declaring the boosts "may well drive so many discretionary travelers out of the European market that the carriers' revenues will actually decline." It may also turn more budget-minded travelers to what has been called "an extensive underground travel industry that makes low-cost travel available to legally ineligible passengers."

Illicit charter flights -- which save passengers as much as 50 per cent of the scheduled fares -- gross millions of dollars a year. CAB regulations restrict cheap charter flights to "affinity groups" -- clubs, labor unions and similar organizations. Members are supposed to have enrolled at least six months in advance of the trip. But some travel agents set up their own groups that leave on weekly schedules and wink at the membership regulations.

Last year, the CAB filed 12 suits involving illegal charters. But the authorities admit there is little they can do but stop the most flagrant violations. But with fares going up, a bargain is too much to resist for a growing number of travelers.

Egypt Believed Strengthened By 90 MIGs Since Late '70

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has bolstered Egypt's air defenses with about 90 more MIG21 jet interceptors since late last year, U.S. intelligence reports indicate.

The Soviets also have strengthened Egypt's force of SU7 and earlier model MIG fighter bombers which could support ground troops, Pentagon sources said.

According to recent U.S. intelligence reports, the Egyptians have 220 MIG21s, 206 MIG17s and MIG15s, and 120 SU7s.

This compares with an earlier assessment that, as of last December, Egypt's Russianbuilt air force owned 128 MIG21s, 150 MIG17s and 15s, and 97 SU7s.

A small force of old bombers has remained stable in numbers.

The extent of any Russian buildup of surface-to-air missiles in Egypt in recent months was not available, but as of the end of 1970, U.S. military sources said, the SAM defenses were formidable—360 SA2 launchers and 120 SA3 launchers.

The SA2 is fired at high-flying planes, the SA3 against lower flying attackers.

The increase in Egypt'smilitary power during the months of the cease-fire has included significantly more MI8 troop-carrying helicopters and huge artillery pieces as well as other equipment, the sources said.

The new materiel was shipped through the Dardanelles in a stream of ships checked to their Egyptian destinations by U.S. reconnaissance planes. U.S. officials are silent on other means of gathering information on Soviet military shipments.

Meanwhile, the United States has been furnishing Israel more jets, tanks and other military gear under a $500 million appropriation vote by the last Congress.

Concerto to Be Performed For First Time

CAPE GIRARDEAU--A concerto especially written for the Southeast Missouri State College symphony orchestra will be performed for the first time in public April 1 at the orchestra's spring concert.

Dallas Tjaden, director of the orchestra, said the premiere performance of "Concerto for Harp and Orchestra" will feature as guest harpist, Mrs. Ayako Watanabe, a member of the St. Louis Symphony. The college's orchestra is made up of 45 students.

The concert will begin at 8 p.m. in Rose Theatre of the Language Arts Building. It is free and open to the public.

Commissioned by the college two years ago, the concerto was composed by Dr. Francis Johnson Pyle, professor of theory and musicology at Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa. It was to have been finished last spring, but was delayed because the composer had a heart attack.

Tjaden said, to his knowledge, this is the first time Southeast Missouri State has ever commissioned a piece of music especially for one of its musical groups.

Besides the concerto, the concert will include "Symphony in G Major" by Antonin Dvorak and "The Emperor Waltz" by Johann Strauss.

Dr. Pyle will be on campus April 1 to attend the concert.

Bond Stunned by Call for Stamp Transfer Probe

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — State Auditor Christopher (Kit) Bond expressed surprise Wednesday that a member of the Missouri House wants an investigation of Bond's action in turning over $4,440 in postage stamps to the Missouri Senate.

Rep. E. J. (Lucky Cantrell, D-Overland, House appropriations chairman, introduced the resolution calling for the investigation. He said there could be a conflict of interest involved since a Senate committee now is considering Bond's appropriation for the coming year.

Republican Bond said "conflict of interest?" Then he added that Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes had called Tuesday and asked when he planned to provide some of the stamps for the House.

Bond discovered a batch of old stamps with a total value of $31,560 when he took over the auditor's office from Democrat Haskell Holman.

With Cantrell's investigation proposal hanging, Bond said he presumed he had better wait for a decision there before providing any stamps for the House, as he had intended to do.

Bond said he provided his field men with some of the stamps but presumed he had $24,000 or $25,000 worth still locked up.

Cantrell's resolution calls for a committee of five House members to investigate whether there is a conflict of interests.

"If such a give-away gesture," Cantrell said in his resolution, "although possibly quite sincere and honest in intent, were to be sanctified and imitated by department heads and other elected officials, the procedure of appropriating would be subverted and the legislative branch would have no way of controlling what an agency received from general revenue since agencies and departments could subsidize each other..."

The resolution was to be sent to committee.

Included among bills advanced by the House was one to provide state financing for auxiliary services and special education for pupils of nonpublic schools.

It is a new version of the earlier "shared time" bill that regularly has been defeated in the Missouri legislature. This one, too, seemed headed for trouble. The vote on advancement was 62-60 and it will need at least 82 affirmative votes for final House passage.

Trees Given to Delta Center

PORTAGEVILLE--The Delta Center was presented with an assortment of 250 trees as a part of a gift of the James Foundation, St. James, to the University of Missouri in Columbia.

The trees include 85 sweet gum, 65 sycamore, 54 American Holly and 54 Foster holly. The trees will be used to beautify the grounds at the agricultural experiment center.

How do you grow Amiben™-clean beans at the lowest possible cost?

More than 100,000 soybean farmers depend upon Amiben, spray or granules, band applied using a planter-mounted attachment. It's the most economical way.

In most soybean areas, normal rainfall carries the Amiben into the top layer of soil, providing outstanding and dependable control of most annual grasses and weeds. There are exceptions. If soil moisture is low when you plant, and rainfall doesn't come in 3 to 5 days, then use your rotary hoe. This accomplishes a light soil incorporation, and chips up any emerging weeds.

Here are a few suggestions along that line: Use your rotary hoe any time, every time you: 1—use Amiben in low rainfall areas, 2—plant into marginal soil moisture and rainfall doesn't follow in 3-5 days, 3—apply Amiben after beans have been planted.

Farmers know that Amiben is today's most effective soybean herbicide. It is the only product that gives dependable control of most annual grasses and weeds—and doesn't let big broadleafs like ragweed, lambsquarters, velvetleaf (buttonweed), and smartweed escape. Make Amiben your choice. It captures them all. That's why farmers have made Amiben No. 1.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

When should you transplant tiny seedlings that develop from the seeds you sow? Wait until the second set of leaves begin to spread.

Just about this time, you can figure the seedlings are becoming crowded in their seed bed, box or pot and are ready for their individual homes, or at least a less crowded area.

You are ready now to transplant them into individual pots made of peat that can be sunk right into the permanent spot in the garden when the soil warms.

Some varieties are more difficult to transplant than others, but many flower and vegetable seeds are easy to move. Be sure the medium holding the seedlings is quite moist, but drained. Have the pots and fresh growing medium ready.

There are a number of inert materials such as perlite, sphagnum moss or vermiculite, or a combination that may be used. You'll have to add water soluble fertilizer to these to provide nourishment. Or you can use soil, sand or granular peat moss, or a combination of fine texture. Sieve to accomplish the fineness and wet thoroughly. This will help tiny roots develop.

There are special transplanting tools but a fork or small knife is good to lift small bunches of seedlings from the planter. Plants that cling together may be separated by pulling them apart gently with your fingers.

Finally, the seedling should be centered in a pot three-quarters filled with the growing medium. Holding the plant upright, add more of the medium around the roots, and pack down firmly, leaving room at the top for future waterings.

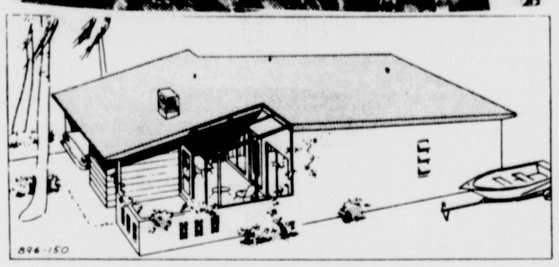
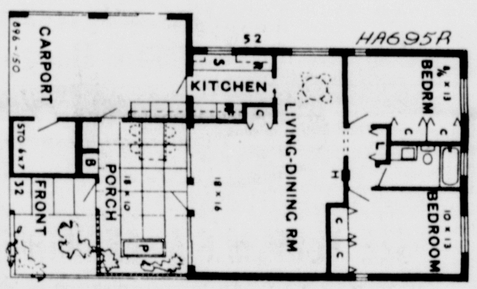
If your evergreens show brown or dead areas after the winter, it may be because the frozen soil could not replace moisture lost through the needles to drying winds.

Next fall, spray with anti-desiccant compounds to reduce dieback and browning. This will cut moisture loss from foliage.

The anti-desiccant or anti-wilting material should be applied on a sunny fall day, when the temperature is 40 or above. The compounds, mixed with water, give leaves a sheen and slow the tree transpiration, or vapor loss, in winter. When spring growth begins, the coating is shed. A second application next January is helpful.

Mulches around the plant will help keep ground temperatures more constant and conserve soil moisture. Apply the mulch after the first frost.





RETIREMENT HOME: This compact two-bedroom, one bath is designed for a narrow lot. It requires 896 square feet, plus carport and screened porch. For maximum privacy no windows face the neighbors. The porch contains a barbecue and a fish pool and can be used for dining out. This is a masonry, slab-on-grade structure topped by a gently pitched tar and gravel roof. Heat can be gas or electric. Plan HA695R was designed by Architect Jan Reiner, 1000 52nd Street North, St. Petersburg, Fla., 33710.

COUNTERING critics of the Laotian campaign, Adm. Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, says the Allied drive has "severely disrupted" North Vietnam's operations and is "well worth the cost" in allied casualties and equipment losses.

The Phoenicians are credited with the invention of soap about 600 B.C. Jessie Oakley of Newburgh, N.Y., began manufacturing the first soap cakes that were individually wrapped and uniform in weight about 1830, The World Almanac says. Previously, soap had been sold to grocers in large blocks from which pieces were cut as desired.

EVERYONE WATCHED THE southbound Frisco train come in at Sikeston more than 50 years ago. This was on Feb. 21, Sunday, but the year was not available. It was not a wintry day.

A SATURDAY STREET SCENE around 1905-08 looking northeast on Front street with the Farmer Supply store later J. C. Penney store, at left. The corner portion of the building was the first location of the Bank of Sikeston. Across the street was the former Citizens or Peoples Bank. The families came in their wagons for the day and unhitched the wagons in the railroad parking lot.

It's The Law

Disappears, Turns Up Dead

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

After work each night, Norton would spruce up like a Christmas tree and sit on the stoop of his apartment house with one of his more curvacious next-door neighbors. And, if their constant appearance together looked deceitful, their ultimate disappearance together was obvious.

Nevertheless, for 13 years, Norton's wife waited hopefully for Norton's return. Her patience unrewarded, she finally applied for Social Security benefits on the grounds that after seven years of "unexplained" absence, her husband was presumed dead.

"Sorry, lady," she was told, "but, your husband's absence isn't unexplained. He's in limbo somewhere with the bimbo that used to live next door."

"That could be," responded the wife, "but in 13 years, I haven't heard from him, my children haven't heard from him and his parents haven't heard from him. What's more, not even governmental agencies have been able to locate him. Consequently, if Norton isn't dead, he certainly should be!"

Whereupon, Norton's wife took her claim for Social Secuirty benefits to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you deem Norton dead and award Social Secuirty benefits to his patient wife?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that despite the fact that Norton had taken off with his curvacious neighbor, reason dictates that in 13 years he would have contacted his wife, children or parents if he were alive. And, since extensive search and inquiry has failed to turn him up, Norton's absence being unexplained for seven years, he's presumed dead.

Based upon a 1965 United Staes District Court Decision.

Smoking Linked to Childbearing Risk

COLUMBIA–Women protect more than just their own hearts and health when they give up cigarettes, according to the Missouri Heart Association.

Citing a major study in Great Britain, the Association says there is new evidence that mothers who smoke face a significantly greater risk of stillbirth, or death of babies shortly after birth, than do nonsmoking mothers. The study revealed that smoking during pregnancy harms the fetus by exerting a retarding influence on its growth.

In another test of more than 2,000 mothers during a one-year period in the state of Washington, there was a higher incidence of miscarriages, stillbirths, newborn deaths and premature labor among women who smoked than among nonsmokers, adds the Missouri Heart Association.

But according to Dr. Jesse L. Steinfeld, Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, women have not been giving up the cigarette habit in as great numbers as have men. Dr. Steinfeld also has cited evidence that women have more trouble quitting than do men. The relapse rate of women who go back to tobacco is 38 per cent higher than that of men.

In the past four years alone about 10 million Americans have given up cigarettes, but women account for only 300,000 of this total. It is additionally estimated that the number of women in this country who presently do smoke cigarettes is about 20 million.

The 10 million who have been able to quit stand as proof, says the Missouri Heart Association, that the effort is not as difficult as some make it sound. It can be made easier if done in a group with friends, or with the help of such organizations as the Heart Association.

Among the material on smoking and health available from the Missouri Heart Association are "Cigarette Quiz," "What Everyone Should Know About Smoking and Heart Disease," and "How to Stop Smoking." The latter can be used along with five half-hour films on smoking withdrawal, which can be made available for group viewing.

The Missouri Heart Association will not only help you give up smoking, but will help you to understand and to change other habits to lower your risk of heart disease. These risk factors include high blood pressure, a diet high in animal fats and cholesterol, lack of regular exercise, excess weight and the influence of diseases such as diabetes.

The Prayer
from The Upper Room

"He also who has the two talents come forward, saying, 'Master, you delivered to me two talents; here I have made two talents more.'" (Matthew 25:22, RSV)

PRAYER: Our Father, we ask Thee today to help us to recognize our talents. Help us as we put them into service for others. Keep us from laziness and neglect in their use. We ask in the name of Thy son. Amen.

Old Guard Backlash Feared on Teller Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new system of recording votes in the House is working so well its supporters express fear guardians of the old order may try to scuttle it.

The new method, which played a major part in the startling House vote to cut off funds for the supersonic transport plane, is the key reform put over last year by younger members.

They hoped to achieve two things: Bring more members to the floor to vote on amendments, and make them publicly responsible for their positions. Until this year members were counted for or against amendments but not recorded by name

The 217-204 teller vote by which the House adopted an amendment deleting the SST funds would appear convincing proof the reformers' hopes have been realized.

But because the vote also represented a stinging defeat for the Democratic and Republican leadership in the House, the administration and such powerful special interests as the aerospace industry and organized labor, the reformers are uneasy.

They report widespread grumbling about the new system among leaders, committee chairmen and others who don't like to be rolled by the rankand-file.

No leaders will criticize the recording of teller votes openly.

KEEPS HIS WORD

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Former U.S. Open golf champion Lee Trevino was quite serious when he said two years ago he would never play in the Masters tournament again. "It is not my kind of course," Trevino said.

Trevino will play in the 10th annual Old Dominion Open April 3-5, a time usually set aside by Masters competitors for practice. The Masters dates at Augusta, Ga., are April 8-11.

Profits from the Old Dominion will go to the United Negro College Fund.

Hearing Waived On Stealing Charge

CHARLESTON---Charles Lee Owens waived preliminary hearing on a felony charge of stealing before Magistrate Judge T. J. Brown, Jr. and was bound over to circuit court to appear March 31 or such time as the court shall set.

Owens is accused of taking two gold rings and a matched set of rings, valued at $197.57 from Bryants Jewelry Store in Charleston March 12. He failed to post $1,000 bond and was returned to jail.

In an extradition case (felony) the court found Norval Bohannon properly charged with the commission of crime in the state of Texas and has fled from justice. It was ordered by the court that by warrant the defendant be committed to jail for 30 days, to enable the arrest of the defendant to be made under a warrant of the governor of Missouri on a requisition of the executive authority of the state having jurisdiction of the offense. Bohannon was released on $1,000 bond returnable to court April 17.

Rape and felonious assault charges were dismissed by Judge Brown against Paul Johnson, James Foster and Rufus "Pop" Armstrong. Other cases dismissed included a common assault charge against Clyde Ray Tucker; and a disturbing the peace charge against Elax George.

A. J. Sittner dismissed a possession of property for non-payment of rent suit against Bill Teague.

Dale Parden and Dickie Parden, both charged with disturbing the peace were given suspended six month jail sentences and placed on probation for one year. Condition of probation being they obey the law and pay their fines and court costs. Dale Parden was fined $30 and Dickie Parden was fined $31.

U.S. Toll May Be Highest of War

33 Americans Killed, 76 Wounded

SAIGON (AP)--North Vietnamese sappers ran through a U.S. artillery base in the jungle south of Da Nang early Sunday, killing 33 Americans and wounding 76 within an hour. It was believed to be the highest American death toll of the war in an attack on a U.S. installation.

The U.S. Command reported 12 of the sappers were killed, some of them inside the base and some by helicopter and C119 gunships.

Much of the base was overrun, but it remained in American control today. "Extensive action is being conducted in the area," the U.S. Command said.

There was a general setup in enemy action, much of it in the Da Nang region. U.S. officers said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were taking advantage of the dark of the moon--"there is always higher enemy activity about this time because it's easier for the enemy to get into position without being detected," one officer said.

Viet Cong sappers raided a resettlement village 25 miles south of Da Nang early today, killing 13 South Vietnamese, wounding 21 and burning 100 houses. Twenty-five 100-pound rockets hit the Da Nang Air base and the nearby Marble Mountain air facility, damaging a few planes and helicopters and wounding several Americans. Enemy gunners also shelled the headquarters of the U.S. American Division at Chu Lai, south of Da Nang, but no casualties or damage was reported.

The attack on the artillery base 50 miles south of Da Nang began about 2 a.m. with a barrage of 50 to 60 mortar rounds that pinned down the less than 400 American defending the base.

"They put in some mortar rounds and our people took cover," said one American field officer. "There were sappers going through the place throwing satchel charges into our bunkers and firing positions. base and dropped the charges as they went across. They did most The sappers swept across the of the damage."

Fourth Hospitalized

Three Children Die In Blaze

BERNIE--Three children are dead and another hospitalized as a result of a Saturday night fire that destroyed the R. L. Johnson farm house five miles east of Bernie.

Dead are Mary Ann Johnson, seven; Robbie Ann Johnson, four; and Robert Lewis Ayers, two. Death was caused by suffocation.

Fire Chief Al Banken said the father and mother, Emma Ayers, were out feeding on the farm when they spotted the fire at 5:06 p.m. He said they ran into the house and dragged four children out.

Robbie Johnson and Robert Ayers were dead at the scene. Mary Johnson died at 2:30 a.m. Sunday at Dexter Memorial hospital. Shirley Ayers, the fourth child, was reported in fair condition at the hospital.

Mary Johnson was born Nov. 22, 1963 in Cape Girardeau. Robbie Johnson was born Aug. 6, 1966 in Burlington, Iowa. Robert Ayers was born Jan. 12, 1969 in Dexter.

Other survivors include two brothers, Carol Ayers and Calvin Gene Ayers,; and two sisters, Christine Ayers and Sarah Jean Ayers.

The bodies were taken to Rainey Funeral Home in Dexter.

Anchor Toy Doors Close

Anchor Toy, a division of New York based Transogram Corp., has closed the doors of its Sikeston manufacturing plant.

The shutdown was announced to employes Friday afternoon by Plant Superintendent Brad Shain.

In a prepared statement written by Transogram officials, Shain said:

"Due to the financial condition of the company and its uncertain future under chapter II of the Bankruptcy Act, the plant is being closed as of today—indefinitely."

Anchor Toy began operations in Sikeston in February of 1956. At one time it was one of the largest employers in the city with a payroll of nearly 500.

Last year it employed nearly 300 but Shain explained:

"A small reduction in the working force was made due to the difficulty in obtaining raw materials."

At that time the work force was reduced from 208 to 63. Friday the remaining 63 were laid off.

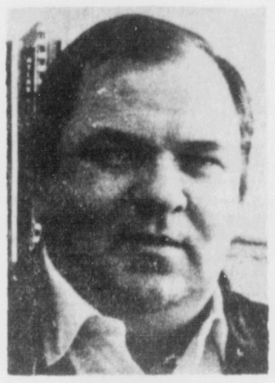
The Sikeston shutdown is a result of financial difficulties of the parent company, Transogram.

According to Stanley Hendler, New York attorney for the company, the reason for the bankruptcy was that immediate interim financing wasn't available. With various lawsuits and actions pending against Transogram, it was necessary to seek the assistance of the federal court to permit the company to continue operating, he said.

Officials of Transogram in New York declined to comment on the shutdown this morning and said only that they had "enjoyed a good relationship with the community of Sikeston and would issue a statement as soon as possible."

Anchor Toy was an assembly plant for plastic toys. Plastic parts were shipped to Sikeston where a completed toy was produced.

Transogram previously had discontinued operations in plants in Michigan and Pennsylvania. The Sikeston plant was the last remaining operation of the company.



BRAD SHAIN, plant manager of Anchor Toy, said this morning that only a skeleton crew will be maintained at the establishment. At one time the company employed nearly 500.

Inn Fire Leaves 3 Dead, 7 Missing, 14 Injured

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP) — An intense fire, with flames that could be seen for miles, raced through the 117-year-old Canandaigua Inn early today leaving at least three persons dead, seven missing and sending 14 persons to hospitals.

Firemen searching the smouldering rubble found two charred bodies buried in the wreckage. A third man died of a heart attack after fleeing the burning hotel in the early morning hours.

Stanley Rypka, a former patient at a Veterans Administration Hospital here, collapsed at the scene and died at the hospital.

Detective Anthony Decere said the fire broke out on the top floor of the four-story brick and wood building and engulfed all but the ground floor within 20 minutes.

Occupants of the 70 rooms included students at the Finger Lakes Community College and patients recently discharged from the nearby Veterans Administration hospital.

Five hours after the blaze was reported, at 12:25 a.m., the building continued to burn, preventing firemen from checking for bodies.

"I'm afraid there are victims buried beneath the rubble," Decere said.

"There must be bodies in there," a witness said. "They couldn't all have gotten out."

A spokesman for the hospital said a staff member at the scene made contact with most of the former patients and reported them "okay."

A number of persons were rescued by ladder from the top floors and others were led down fire escapes to safety.

More than 150 firemen and equipment from communities as far as 20 miles away were called in. At the height of the four hour blaze flames were visable for almost ten miles.

Today's fire was the third major blaze at the inn in the last 13 years.

Young Stress Environment

Sikeston High School today was host to an environmental conference for 21 area schools with more than 135 students attending.

The all-day conference, designed to create an awareness among high school students to environmental problems, was at the First Baptist church.

Bill Young, area environmental health specialist from Sedalia, gave the keynote address. Young was the first environmental health specialist in the nation.

He said that high schol students have the greatest environmental concern of any age group.

"I've spoken to all age groups and I find that among the high school students there is the greatest amount of honest concern and desire to effect a change.

"Concern for environmental problems run from the doomsday prophets to the totally unconcerned," he said. Unfortunately a great deal of the unconcerned groups are the ones in power."

Young said that until recently people have not been much concerned with the problem of environment.

"A lot of people feel that the pollution concern is just a fad of the young," he said. "A few years ago they had civil rights, and then the war and now they have taken on the environment, but this isn't true. There is real concern among the young."

Young's address was followed by a panel discussion on "Population, Urbanization and Technology." Members of the panel were Debbie Voorhees, Columbia University of Missouri nursing school; Jim Pierce, director of trace element laboratory at the University and Jack McCall, area environmental health specialist from St. Louis.

The students attended a luncheon at the Holiday Inn and heard a discussion on "Federal Environmental Enforcement" by Towena Michaels, Washington coordinator of public information for youth with the environmental protection agency.

Workshops held thi afternoon included:

Air - Michae MARSHALL' DIRECTOR OI ENFORCEMENT AII CONSERVATIOI COMMISSION IN Jefferso City, chairman. Water — Pegg Keilholz, administrative assistan with the Missouri wat pollution board in Jefferso City, chairman. Solid Waste - Ralph Frederickson, assistan chief, solid waste project wit the division of health of Missouri in Jefferson City, chairman.

Workshops were also held in the high school.

Members of the workshops were Bill Branum, president of the student council; David Crader, vice president of the student council; Bob Depro, faculty representative; Barbara Brown, sponsor of Harlequin Players; Susan Ward, representative of the arts department; Gary Westwood, university of Missouri at Columbia and Joe Welbourn, Bloomfield.

33 Crewmen Missing From Tanker Which Broke in Two

PORTSMOUTH, Fa. (AP) — Thirty-three of 44 crewmen were missing today from the tanker Texaco Oklahoma, which broke in two in heavy Atlantic seas 120 miles northeast of Cape Hatteras, N.C.

Eleven men of the tanker's crew were rescued from a life raft by a passing freighter, which headed for New York as the Coast Guard resumed a search this morning for possible survivors.

Most of the missing crewmen were from the area of Port Arthur, Tex. The tanker was loaded with 220,000 barrels of oil.

The Coast Guard here said the cutter Escanaba and an aircraft from its air station at Elizabeth City, N.C., were dispatched this morning to search the area where the Texaco Oklahoma went down.

The Coast Guard said it was a mystery why three-fourths of the crewmen apparently didn't escape the sinking ship early Saturday.

It was 36 hours after the 661foot vessel broke in two in 15foot seas and winds of 40 to 60 knots before the Coast Guard learned of the tragedy.

The word came in the form of two messages from the Liberian freighter Sasstown saying it had picked up 11 survivors in a life raft.

Both messages, the Coast Guard said, reported 20 crewmen missing—last seen by the survivors as they abandoned the stern section of the 20,084ton tanker about 5:30 a.m. Sunday.

A Texaco spokesman in Port Arthur, said however that records showed 42 crewmen aboard.

The Sasstown, en route to New York, sighted the life raft about 4 p.m. Sunday.

Revenue Bills To Get Priority

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Dockets of both houses are clogged with hundreds of bills but pressing revenue problems have top priority when the Missouri Legislature comes back to work today.

Both the House and Senate were to meet at 2 p.m.

As a special order of business the House will take up for passage a bill to extend the present one-year income tax rates on a permanent basis.

Last December a special session enacted rates of 1½ to 6 per cent for individuals and a top of 5 per cent for corporations. They will expire Dec. 31 which would leave the state in even worse financial shape than it is now.

The House bill is believed to have enough votes for passage.

Meanwhile, Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Coeur, said if enough senators were present he would call up for renewed debate his bill to maintain present income tax rates and make changes in the law to conform with federal definitions.

He says this would provide lower income taxes for persons earning up to $9,000 a year.

Money Runs out On SST Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — "On Tuesday, the U.S. will be out of the SST business. That's the day the money runs out."

The speaker is William M. Magruder, director of the office of supersonic transport development for the Department of Transportation.

The SST development package was killed by Congress last week when the Senate followed earlier House action and rejected $134 million in subsidies. That put the federal government out of the SST picture. There may be private financing of the program but, Mcgruder says, talks so far "have not been very encouraging."

Even though his office won't be working on SST development, it will operate, for awhile. Closing out the program may take up to two years. "No one has ever terminated a $1 billion unfinished business before," Magruder said.

Ending the federal role may include helping sell the American SST development plan to a foreign bidder.

Sunday, Magruder said inquiries have been received from Japan, West Germany and the Middle East. He identified only the Japanese firm, Ataka, a small trading company which has requested the State Department set up a trade mission visit on the matter.

Bid for Orton to Run Filed

CARUTHERSVILLE (AP)--An attorney for Clyde Orton, Pemiscot County sheriff said today he has filed a motion with the Missouri Supreme Court aimed at allowing the sheriff to run for the office from which he has been ordered ousted.

The court ordered the ouster March 8 for oppression in office and neglect of duty. Fifteen days were allowed for filing of motions before the order is made final, but the court has not yet rendered a final judgment.

Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth filed a motion aimed at barring Orton from running in a special election to fill the office he would vacate.

Attorney James Reeves said he has sent to the Supreme Court memorands on five different ouster suits brought in the past by the state. He said "in no instance does the court determine eligibility of the respondent for re-election."

ARE CRIMINAL ACTS A HUMAN RIGHT?

Some time ago the nation was rocked by the news story that an Iowa couple — Mr. and Mrs. Edward Briney of Eddyville — had lost their home to a convicted crook who had been injured by a trap gun while he was breaking and entering. The burglar sued the Brineys because of the wound he received, and the court awarded $30,000 plus $5000 in court costs to the crook. The Brineys faced the loss of their 80 acre farm and house in order to raise the money to pay the thief.

The case apparently was won by the larcenist on the fallacious grounds of "human rights vs. property rights." It's been said before, but 'twill do no harm to repeat it again; property has no rights. There is, however, the human right to own property. If that human right is destroyed, there are precious few rights left, because the right to own one's property is basic to the right of liberty, or speech, or happiness, or, in the last analysis, to life itself.

Suppose, for example, that a government dictatorship should take over ownership and control of all food production, distribution and sale. Any time the government wishes to do so, it can starve you to death — simply by turning off the spigot.

Or, as in the case of Chile; at this moment, the Marxist government is slowing "assuming" (correct term, stealing) ownership of all privately, independently controlled newspapers. It goes without saying that once the government owns all of the press-property, free speech is wiped out.

Now that the Briney case has entered a new phase , the eyes of the nation will watch the outcome with interest. In a counter-action, the Brineys have now, in turn, sued the criminal. The victims are asking for $40,000 in action and $25,000 in punitive damages from the burgular, contending that a man should not profit from his criminal actions.

In a related court action, the Brineys have asked for an injunction freeing them from paying the original damage award to the thief. Thus far the injuction has been refused by the Iowa lower courts, and it is expected that the case will go to the state Supreme Court.

LESS MONEY AROUND?

In reading Capital Advisors report, we agree with their contention that consumers, corporations and governments strangely enough are each of the opinion that it's the other fellow who's got the liquid funds. For example, teachers in New York threatened with lay offs accuse the city and state of holding back the money; the lcal governments in turn argue that Washington has the money; and Administration economists complete the circle when they say that all the economy needs now is the confidence of the consumer for certainly he's got all the money to spend whenever he so desires.

What do you think?

Ralph Waldo Emerson said it:

For everything you have missed, you have gained something else; and for everything you gain, you lose something.

Job in the Old Testament put it this way:

Naked came I out of my mother's womb,and naked shall I return thither; Jehovah gave, and Jehovah hath taken away; blessed be the name of Jehovah.

RENDERING UNTO CESAR

The movement led by Cesar Chavez to unionize California grape pickers has become so involved with liberal emotions, and also so fashionable a "cause," that the substance of the whole controversy — though fascinating — is seldom discerned ....

From the Volkswgen with its "Boycott Grapes" sticker, to the pages of the National Catholic Reporter, to Southampton, L.I., where beautiful people like Anne Uzielli and Ethel Kennedy stage elaborate bashes in support of Chavez, the satisfying myth prevails: Migrant workers, grossly underpaid and living in wretched conditions, pick the grapes in the San Joaquin valley; they are naturally eager to join Chavez' union; but they are prevented from doing so by fear of the growers, who comprise a fascistic oligarchy. Hence national, and even global, moral indignation.

The reality is much more complicated and ethically problematical. In Delano, the major grape-growing area which is central to the whole controversy, 90 per cent of the pickers aren't migrants, but year-round residents. They are also exceptionally well paid, the best paid agricultural workers in the continental U.S., averaging between $2 and $2.50 per hour — much more, for example, than the $1.69 per hour of the average California farm worker. Delano workers also enjoy more comprehensive extra benefits than farm workers in any other state.

But Chavez has concentrated on Delano precisely because the pickers are well paid and are not migrants. He in fact abandoned his earlier attempt to organize migrants in Texas, for their very mobility makes it difficult to collect dues efficiently, and in states like New York and Florida migrants aren't paid enough to make the dues worth collecting. But in Delano the workers are on the scene, and they have the money.

Which is precisely why they have not been eager to join Chavez. So far, only about three per cent have signed up. And this wariness about Chavez is why there has in fact been no "grape strike"; thus making the consumer boycott Chavez' chief weapon. The "pickets" Chavez has been able to muster are not Delano grape pickers but Chavez followers from elsewhere.

What, then, is going on? In order to have a viable union, Chavez needs the dues of the relatively well paid and established, but therefore reluctant, table-grape pickers in the San Joaquin valley. He also wants a closed shop — i.e., a monoply — and so opposes placing farm workers under the NLRB, which would make a closed shop illegal. Now if this were all, one would conclude that Chavez is merely on the make, and wants the power and profit such a situation would bring him.

But this is not so. Everything we know about his life and his ideals goes against such a conclusion. The truth appears to be more complex and more ambiguous. Chavez conceives of the grape-picker drive in the context of the entire Mexican - American problem.

If he can force unionization on the grape pickers, he will have an organization in being, with funds, and such an organization would apply economic and political pressure on behalf of Mexican - American migrants, on behalf of the urban barrios, and so on. The reluctant dues of the Delano pickers are only the essential foundation of his efforts to improve the lot of Mexican - Americans generally. Like the Mafia for the Italians, like the urban political machines for the Irish a generation ago, the grape-pickers union will be an instrumentality of Mexican-American community power.

All this may be admirable, and may even be practicable (though the growers say that if Chavez succeeds, they will simply switch to wine grapes, which can be harvested by machine). But it is all pretty remote from the melodrama of liberal myth.

Those who boycott grapes are penalizing growers — most of them small, family-owned enterprises, which pay good wages and provide good working conditions — in order to force pickers, mostly against their will, to pay their dues to Chavez in order to organize economic and political power on behalf of the Mexican - American community.

THE ATTITUDE OF PRAYER

The proper way for man to pray, said
Deacon Lemuel Keyes,
And the only proper attitude is down upon his knees.

It seems to me his hands should be devoutly clasped in front
With both thumbs pointing toward the ground, said the Rev. Dr. Blunt.

Oh! No, no, no, said Elder Blow, his voice with thunder riven.
He should raise his hands on high and be looking up to heaven.

Last year I fell in Hodkins well head-
first, said Cyrus Brown,
With both heels a'sticking up and my

I made a prayer right then and there — best prayer I ever said.
The prayin'est prayer I ever prayed was standing on my head.

BEATING DRUMS FOR OTHER FELLOW

We're not exactly beating the drums for the other fellows who are our competitors for the advertising dollar, but can't keep quiet on an obvious unfair attempt to tax some of them.

Last week at Jefferson City a bill advanced which would tax advertising on billboards and in magazines, while at the same time exempting advertising in newspapers of less than 10 million subscribers (of which we are one). If it is fair to tax them, it is also fair to tax newspapers, radio and television advertising.

As Gertrude Stein would have said "advertising is advertising is advertising" and if we're going to tax one sort, in all fairness we should tax all.

Of course, we've always contended that advertising is a service, not a commodity, and as such should not be taxed. If it is however, all services should be subject to the sales tax — such as those of lawyers, doctors, income tax preparers, plumbers, carpenters, and all other services.

MOB BEHAVIOR

Congress has certainly demonstrated the truth of the adage that "what is everybody's business is nobody's business." Individually, each congressman is as well-meaning a citizen as anyone else. Chances are, he is fully aware of what makes inflation. He--as an individual--is all for economy in government. He knows that a government that lives within its means is the sole hope of halting inflation, stabilizing prices and protecting the dollar which his fellowman works so hard to attain in enough numbers to keep a family going and build savings for the future. Yet, as a whole, Congress is acting like an uncontrollable mob. Its action in cutting taxes and boosting appropriations far beyond Administration requests is a sure road to more inflation.

The behavior of Congress will eventually have to be explained to folks back home by each individual congressman. No matter how meritorious his personal beliefs, his record as part of the mob in Washington deserves questioning.

A GLARING CONTRADICTION

We are hearing more and more of a cooperative government - industry effort to train and place the hard - core unemployed in productive jobs. The National Alliance of Businessmen hopes to encourage private industry to find places for 500,000 men and women in jobs by June, 1971. In addition, private industry has been asked to provide 200,000 summer jobs to needy young men and women. Everyone recognizes that the time for platitudes in meeting the crisis of urban strife and riots is long past. Part of this crisis has been caused by the steady flow of people from rural areas to thycities, where a percentage of them fall into the classification of hard - core unemployed -- the unemployed that industry, with the cooperation of government, is seeking to help.

Some industries appear to be less suited than others to help with the urban crisis. For example, the timber industry is basically rural. It can provice few jobs in the core areas of cities. But, if given a chance, it can help in other ways. It can provide steady employment in the smaller communities, where its far- flung operations are centered; and this brings up the glaring contradiction in public policy with regard to utilization of the nation's forest lands. Timber companies, mindful of the pressing need for wood products and jobs, as well as recreation, have long espoused the multiple user of our forest lands. They have been fighting an uphill battle to prevent the locking up of vast tracts of timberlands in sterile wilderness areas -- sterile because trees are like any other crop. If not harvested, they go to waste, and no one benefits.

The belief that a wilderness is static and should be reserved for wildlife and recreation only is both ill- founded and unwise -- ill- founded because it is not true, and unwise for the simple reason that population growth calls for use of timberlands for wood production, as well as recreation. So again it must be said that the timber industry, if given a chance, can help with the hard - core unemployment problem by preserving the thousands of jobs dependent upon our timberlands -- the nation's greatest renewable natural resource.

It is only fair, considering that its rate — $1.50 a month — hasn't changed for almost 90 years. To make matters worse, the husband had been to a formal dinner earlier in the eveningand was still wearing his full -dress suit. He was having some difficulty with the unwieldy mechanism even before he met the drunk staggering in the opposite direction. They collided and the husband fell backward to the sidewalk, the clock on top of him.

"Why in blazes don't you watch where you're going?!" the angry husband demanded.

"Why don't you wear a wrish watch like everybody elsh," he inquired.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--The Secretary of Defense traditionally has fought in the backrooms for more money, more men, more weapons. It is newsworthy, therefore, that Mel Laird has been calling for military reductions.

He has argued that the nation, by pursuing peace as its policy could avoid future Vietnams. This would make it unnecessary , he has contended, to maintain, the present military build-up.

He has agreed that the U.S. must be prepared to defend its legitimate intersts around the world. But he has questioned the need to rush to the aid of every tottering nation that is faced with insurrection.

He has suggested that former President Johnson never would have been drawn so deeply in Vietnam if peace had been the national priority and a large stand-by force hadn't been available for brush warfare.

Laird has been bitterly opposed inside the policymaking councils by his own military chiefs. Last month, he was finally overruled in the White House by Henry Kissinger, the powerful national security aide.

The bald, bluff Defense Secretary submitted his views to the White House in a position paper, with strong dissents from each of the three services. The paper wound up, inevitably, in Kissinger's Defense Program Review Committee, which appears on the White House organization charts as part of the National Security Council. Kissinger rejected Laird's proposals and laid down the military guidelines last month in a secret memo that had President Nixon's approval.

Essentially, the guidelines call for consolidation and modification of conventional forces to increase their effectiveness. There will be some pullback in Asia, but the U.S. will hold the line in Europe.

To maintain a "realistic deterrence," there will be no substantial cutback in conventional strength, and enough nuclear weapons will be scattered around the world to discourage an enemy attack.

DOLE'S DELIRIUM

When an obscure right-wing publication recently published an astonishing memorandum on Republican political strategy purportedly written by Attorney General John Mitchell, a Midwestern subscriber couldn't believe what she read.

So she sent a copy of the publication, "The WomanConstitutionalist," to Sen. Bob Dole, the Republican National Chairman, asking whether the memorandum was authentic.

She had good reason to wonder. Supposedly addressed to "All White House Staff," the memo called for an all-out GOP appeal to the minority vote as a means of winning the 1972 campaign.

It ordered that all criminal prosecutions of Negroes be immediately stopped and that welfare mothers be paid $50,000 apiece in federal subsidies so they could move to the white suburbs.

"White union leaders will be arrested (and) replaced by Negroes approved by the White House," the memo goes on. "TO OBTAIN THE JEWISH VOTE, the Pentagon has scheduled TEN THOUSAND TROOPS FOR JERUSALEM SIX WEEKS BEFORE the election."

The memo, obviously, is a fake. But Dole wrote the woman: "It does contain much food for thought and I would be inclined to believe its authenticity is not questionable."

A spokesman for Mitchell called the memo "pure unadulterated nonsense." A sheepish spokesman for Dole explained that the Kansas Senator got so many letters that some had to be answered by staff and he didn't have time to check them all.

WASHINGTON WHIRL

TV COMMERICALS -- Federal Communication Chairman Dean Burch has invited parents to tell him whether they object to the hard-sell commercials that interrupt children's television programs. But the TV networks have largely suppressed Burch's request for comments. Except for one or two brief mentions in newscasts, the FCC chairman's statement about kiddies' commercials has been kept off TV. Interested parents and other TV viewers have until May 3 to tell Burch what they think of these commercials. Letters should be addressed to Chairman Dean Burch, Federal Communications Commission, Washington, D.C. 20554.

NIXON-MANSFIELD--President Nixon, despite his troubles with the Democrats who run Congress , always invites Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield over tothe White House for breakfast about twice a month. The two men meet in the first floor family dining room about 8 a.m. for a morning meal that, invariably, is much bigger than either man normally eats. While the President would like to glean as much information as possible about the Majority Leader's thinking, he usually finds himself doing most of the talking. Mansfield is that rare political specimen--a quiet man, given to answering questions with a quick "yes" or "nope." As an aide puts it: "He can stare down anyone in a silence contest."

MIDEAST SETTLEMENT?--The diplomatic negotiators are close to achieving a partial Middle East settlement that would call for a withdrawal of Israeli and Egyptian forces from both banks of the Suez Canal. The canal would then be reopened to international shipping. This happens to be Russia's chief objective in the peace negotiations. Once the canal is re-opened, State Department strategists expect the Russians to continue to stir up tension and turmoil in the Middle East. Our strategists believe, however, that the Kremlin will step back from a confrontation with the United States.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Chinese doctors used to keep small ivory dolls on which their lady patients, too modest to undress, would point out the site of their symptoms.

Why the world's oceans are being polluted: 5 to 10 million tons of oil are spilled into them each year. Most of it comes from the pumping of bilges, the dumping of used fuel and pipeline breaks—not from tanker collisions.

The United States is now the seventh largest wine-producing nation, and 90 per cent of the wine we consume is domestic. Our thirst for this beverage is still moderate. We drink an average of only two gallons a person each year, compared with 30 gallons for the Frenchman or Italian.

What is the deadliest seaway? It is the busy 350-mile long English Channel, where half the world's ship crashes take place. There is at least one collision a month in its crowded waters, plied by 1,000 vessels a day.

To tell or not: Should a doctor tell a patient that he has cancer? Of a group of 100 patients so diagnosed and told the seriousness of their disease, 89 expressed approval for having been informed, 6 said they would have preferred not to know and 5 had no opinion.

Hippies, please note: English gentlemen in the 18th century prided themselves on the length of their hair. Some plastered their tresses before bedtime with two pounds or more of a mixture of pomatum, flour and powder, then slept all night sitting up in an armchair to keep from disarranging their coiffure.

One thing amiss with medicine, women liberationists complain, is its lack of women. They point out that though women make up 51 per cent of the population, only 7.4 per cent of physicians and 10.5 per cent of first-year medical students are feminine.

Worth remembering: "When a man has everything that a woman could ask for, she usually does."

It was William James who observed: "The prevalent fear of poverty among the educated classes is the worst moral disease from which our civilization suffers."

H.L. Hunt Says

HEADLINE SEEKER

Birch Bayh, the gadfly Senator from Indiana, has struck again. Long known for his unswerving devotion to headline seeking and his dauntless courage in looking at TV cameras, the Hoosier hotshot has again jumped mouth first into the limelight.

Last month, three Dallas County deputy sheriffs were surprised, disarmed, bound and then brutally executed in cold blood by desperadoes. This gangland type killing shocked and outraged the law-abiding populace of Dallas, whether black, white or Mexican-American, and a large-scale manhunt for the desperadoes ensued. Arrests were made and those indicted by a grand jury happened to be Mexican-American.

Birch Bayh, from his peregrine perch over the Potomac, couldn't miss a bet like this to get his name publicized. Bayh failed to express any symphathy to the families of the slain deputies, one of whom was also a Mexican-American, or any outrage over the continuing assasinations of law enforcement officers. But with incisive idiocy symptomatic of the liberal philosophy which pervades Washington DC, Bayh proceeded to denounce the Dallas Police Department as having "terrorized" the entire Mexican-American population of Dallas.

Now, the fact is that the Dallas Police Department under the inspired leadership of its new Chief, Frand Dyson, is accomplishing a reduction in the crime rate where other metropolitan areas are still experiencing a rising crime rate. Bayh is obviously trying to make minority hay out of headline grabbing, but he may discover those always trying to make political hay may be turned out to pasture. HLH

By Victor Riesel

CASHLESS CITIES: Labor Chiefs Losing Powerful Liberal Political Allies:

WASHINGTON: -- Across the oval table in the White House Cabinet Room sat Spiro Agnew facing New York's John Lindsay, the singing-est mayor since Jimmy Walker went up to Central Park. No Dream sequence this. Richard Nixon was still president. Mr. Agnew still was vice president.

This was last Tuesday, March 23. It was not even the scene of a confrontation -- and so it lost some brownie points for Mr. Lindsay among the bright Fu Manchu mustachios around the nation who want him campaigning soon for the presidency.

It was in fact a moment of mutual sympathy and empathy. The handsomely profiled, 6-foot-4, big-town mayor looked around and observed that in two years he had become the third in seniority in the group -- a committee of 30 mayors who had come seeking stringless money.

"The turnover in mayors is terriffic, " said Mr. Lindsay.

He added that he was amazed to discover that, except for Philadephia's Mayor Tate and one other, he (Lindsay) was the ranking senior member and had become so despite only two terms in office.

Mr. Nixon, nodding sympathetically, said that he had met with the mayor's committee two years ago and half of them were not here today, "not because they were beaten but because most of them quit. It has often been said that whoever sits in this chair of mine has the toughest job in the world. But the fact is there are times when your jobs out there on the front lines are infinitely more difficult."

This came late in the day after some passionate discussion of the shambles of the cities and impassioned pleas for mutual assistance.

The federal and municipal executives have many common headaches -- and it is certain they do believe that militant labor is one which needs some political aspirin very quickly or the cities will be bankrupted -- and the nation, too.

From this conviction is springing a series of confrontations between even the most liberal of mayors, white and black, and the labor movement itself.

It will get bitter. It will get loud. And it will be one of the most significant developments of our time. From it will roll fantastic political realignments.

The pressure on the cities, from their rapidly unionizing employes' demands for huge wage increases, and insistence on early retirmemt which would cost billions annually in pensions, is draining municipal treasuries.

For example, the New York City fire fighters are holding out for retirement with full pay at any age after 33 years on the job. Therefore, it would soon be possible for some of them to retire at about $300 weekly at 54 years of age.

This is turning off many of labor's liberal friends. There came to my microphone the other day one angry Irishman, Timothy Costello, New York's deputy mayor, former state chairman of the Liberal Party and a militant unionist himself. He's a long hair philosophically and professionally.

He singled out the city's "inflexible" civil service unions for special criticism. And he called for a complete reassessment of the "outmoded concept of trade unionism and its leadership. " Then he called for a "wage-price holiday." Then the union chiefs called him some names, unprintable even in these "off-the-wall" times.

Some days earlier, proving that national policy makers were also declaring war on the labor movement, Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns said the time had come for Congress to cut away some of labor's powers and to stop subsidizing strikers. He called for the end of food stamps and (in two states) unemployment insurance for strikers. He said the power of construction unions was so great, and that wages and other construction costs were so high in cities such as Kansas City and Los Angeles, that "it could ruin great cities."

Such talk by liberal mayors, their aides and high federal officials would have been unthinkable not too long ago. In moments such as these, labor goes for the political jugular.

And we're about to see a riproaring confrontation which will demonstrate whether or not labor still has its old clout as it faces this strange coalition of angy liberals and desperate middle-of-the-roaders.

Labor views the President's plans for the reorganization of federal agencies as an engraved invitation to dinner at a leper colony. Under the plan, the 58-year-old Labor Dept. would be sliced almost in two.

Of its 10,000 employes, just under 6,000 would go into the proposed Dept. of Economic Development. The other 5,000 would be shifted to the Dept. of Human Resources. Thurs, there would not be one central "voice," as George Meany puts it, for labor. The movment looks upon this devleopment "with deep skepticism." In official statements they have hacked at theplan. They are not about to see their "own" special interests department dissolved.

But the plan will become law after 60 days -- unless Congress kills it. Labor will be swarming up the Hill to kill it -- for without the Labor Dept. much of Labor's power will dissipate.

So the battle will be a test of labor's political strength in the Congress -- and the forerunner of the 1972 effort to reward its friends and punish its enemies.

Just watch closely now to see whether the union chiefs can score better than they did on the SST.

War on Cancer

JEFFERSON CITY — "This is a moment in history when the private citizen, through the American Cancer Society, can join in the greatest attack on cancer the world has ever seen," Dr. Charles E. Lockhart, Springfield, Missouri's professional delegate to the National Society, said today.

"We welcome and heartily support proposal for an enlarged and massive drive against this disease which kills more than 300,000 Americans every year," Dr. Lockhart said. "I also foresee a much greater demand for ACS activities. Our aim is to raise one billion dollars in the decade of the 70's to do our fair share in supporting research, promoting professional and public education, and giving service to the cancer patient. Cancer prevention, better tools for diagnosis, the development of new cancer drugs, as well as, selection of the best surgical and radiation techniques are always of great concern."

In Congress, several bills have been introduced including one co-sponsored by Senators Edward M. Kennedy (Mass.) and Jacob Javits (N. Y.) calling for the establishment of a National Cancer Authority. Senator Kennedy said, "The pittance we spend on cancer is dramatic evidence of the urgent need to reorder our national priorities," while pointing out that Americans spend $125 per person each year on the Vietnam war and only 89 cents on cancer research.

"The American Cancer Society has helped achieve much of the progress which has been made in the last decade," Dr. Lockhart declared. "For example, the Society's public education programs in local communities throughout the nation have been teaching women the importance of early detection in the control of breast and uterine cancers. And at a time when deaths from lung cancer have been soaring, we have consistently been alerting people to the danger of cigarette smoking. We also make certain that the latest techniques are brought to the attention of physicians."

Dr. Lockhart foresees a continuing vital role for the American Cancer Socity in these expanded programs. "we already provide more than $24-million a year for cancer research.

Ann Landers

Keeping Score Not Fair

Dear Ann Landers: I've started this letter five times since January 2 and thrown it away because I just couldn't find the right words without sounding coarse and vulgar. Today I decided to express myself as best I can and I hope you will forgive me.

In 1970 I marked a secret calendar, keeping count of how many times my husband made love to me. The grant total on December 31 was 22. This wouldn't be so bad if he were 80 years old, but we are both 25.

When I started to keep count, I made a vow to myself that I would never again make the first move or try to talk him into making love to me which, I am ashamed to say, I had done on several occasions. I realized I had been degrading myself -- like a woman of the streets. I decided if he didn't want me as much as I wanted him, our lovemaking would have no real meaning.

My husband I get along well otherwise. Our friends consider our marriage one of the best. They keep referring to us as a model couple. (Little do they know!)

I am seriously considering divorce. We have no children and are both young enough to make a new life with another partner. Please advise. ---Demand Supply Crisis in San Mateo

Dear D.: It sounds to me as if you want your marriage to fail. A wife who would play this numbers game is consciously or subconsciously hoping her husband's performance will be poor so she will have a reason to dump him.

Your notion that a wife who is sexually aggressive degrades herself "like a woman of the streets" gives me a small clue as to the root of your problem.

Married love should be just as exciting to a woman as to a man and a wife should not be ashamed to initiate it -- in fact, some husbands find this immensely flattering. You need counseling, honey. You consider yourself a very sexy lady who isn't getting enough, but my hunch is that you don't know what it's all about.

Dear Ann Landers: I want to thank you for taking a strong stand against hitchhiking. True, there are some nice kids thumbing their way, but a driver can't tell by looking who is "nice" and who is going to stick a gun in his ribs. Aside from the danger to the driver there is also danger to the hitchiker.

I would like to quote an editorial which appeared recently in the Hartford Courant.:

"A survey by Los Angeles police revealed that 22 girls who hitched rides were victims of forcible rape in that city alone. In New Jersey the state police revealed that 302 of 365 known runaways in 1970 traveled by thumbing rides. A spot check in that same state done on 100 persons picked up in the highways showed that one out of every three hitchhikers had a criminal record. About 5 per cent were wanted by the police. Everywhere degenerates are among both hitchikers and those who pick them up."

You did a real service by printing that column. Thank you. -----Connecticut Yankee

Dear Yankee: And you did a real service by sending that supportive material which gave me a second opportunity to make the point. Thank you.

Drinking may be "in" to the kids you run with -- but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read "Booze And You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

NEWKIRK, Okla (AP) — Dist. Court Judge Lester R. Maris ruled that Beth Lilley of the Arkansas City, Kan., Daily Traveler could not enter his courtroom because she was wearing a pantsuit.

Miss Lilley said she felt the ruling was not only discriminatory but "amounted to a supression of the news."

Judge Maris said later, "We have a rule in this courtroom that women wear dresses because we don't feel other attire meets the standards of dignity of this courtroom. We're sorry if this rule offends anyone, but we made that rule before pantsuits came in."

Asked whether the requirement of dresses for women included miniskirts, the judge replied, "We don't quibble about the length of a dress or skirt."

Mr. and Mrs. James Daniel Wilson

Wilson-Robinson

Miss Deborah Kay Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Robinson, 105 Baker Lane, and James Daniel Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C.D. Russell, were married March 21 at 2 p.m. in the Hunter Memorial First Prebyterian Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Tom Bass.

The bride chose a formal length gown of organza and Chanti-lace. The empire bodice was overlaid with lace, and a tiny scalloped lace band marked the waistline.

The high neck was edged with a lace ruffle. The close fitting sleeves came to a lily point over the hands. The A-line silhouette was banded with a wide band of galloon fashion lace. The Watteau train was edged with matching scalloped lace with two rows of the same lace inserted on the sheer train.

Her head dress was a contoured cap made of floral sprays topped with a cluster of orange blossoms centered with pearl tipped stamen, and touched with soft blue florals. Attached was a two-tiered veil of English bridal illusion.

Diane McClellan, Sikeston was maid of honor, and Martha Suver of Sikeston, bridesmaid. Jim Dovers of Oran was best man and Billy Boshears of Sikeston was groomsman.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are seniors at Sikeston high school and live at 829 Ruth.

Dry Skin Can Be Home Treated

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If your skin resembles a withering apple at the end of winter, don't panic, advises cosmetologist Anna Crispen.

Overheated homes and outdoore cold are a bad combination, and even oily skin can flake from the cold.

A home treatment that is effective may require nothing more than moisture cream with an emollient cream over it, Mrs. Crispen says. It should be applied after the face has been cleansed and left on no longer than 20 minutes. It should then be tissued off. Heat helps open the pores so the best time to use it is when you are taking a hot bath, Mrs. Crispen advises.

If you use a moisturizer on your skin besure to remove it all before going out. The cream contains water which will freeze on your skin.

To activate moisture of the skin, Mrs. Crispen advises pinching the skin gently with the thumb and index finger. In addition, little muscles of the face must be exercised, since as one gets older the muscles shrink and the skin fits more loosely creating lines and wrinkles.

In her New York City studio, Mrs. Crispen may use machines such as a highly oxogenated vapor machine for deep pore cleansing, but her clients also are taught to take care of their skin at home.

"You can iron out some little wrinkles — at least they will not look so deep," she says. "Just take the palm of your hand and gently press it into your wrinkled forehead. And use your thumb to ease away that little line at your mouth...."

A grandmother, in her 50s, Mrs. Crispen looks years younger than her age and has a wrinkle-free skin. But she works at it, she says. She occasionally becomes aware of a line etching its way across her forehead, and she does what she calls "skull-lifting" exercises.

It is simple — you just think "up," she says. You make a great effort to try to lift your ears and forehead by trying to control the muscles. At first, the results are imperceptible, but it does work.

Mrs. Crispen's clients include women who merely need to learn how to take care of their skin properly. But emotional upset have an effect on the skin, and many of her patients are referred by psychiatrists.

Yet, the solution to many skin problems may be nothing more than a corrective diet, exercise, moisture, cleanliness. Even some jowls may be firmed without resorting to plastic surgery, she points out.

Protein — meat, fish, cheese — is essential to pretty skin. Mrs. Crispen has noticed that people who do not get enough protein have little criss-cross lines on their skin. Broken lines under the skin indicate a lack of Vitamin C and rough skin is attributed to a Vitamin A deficiency.

Many young people sent to her by psychiatrists have acne, she says, and their problem may be helped by a cleanliness routine. She relates to them because she, too, had that problem. It gave her, at 17, her interest in cosmetology in her native Austria.

Skin cleanliness is one of the biggest beauty problems, she explains. Young people learn that many people who spend a lot of money pampering their faces with cosmetics by day, go to bed without removing their makeup. This clogs the pores, and may trigger skin problems.

HELP FOR WINTER SKIN — In her New York studio, cosmetologist Anna Crispen uses machines for deep cleansing of the skin, but she wants her clients to learn to take care of their skin at home.

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The litter that people fling out of their cars can include almost anything.

So observes Keep America Beautiful Inc., the national litter-prevention organization, in noting that a volunteer cleanup crew here discovered the following items among trash they picked up on a one-mile stretch of highway.

Six pairs of women's panty hose, a typewriter, several girdles, a loveletter, a court summons, a dollar bill, old tires, bent fenders, empty beer cans, mangled cartons and other discarded junk.

Churchill Pictures Go On Display

FULTON–A photographic display depicting the more than 60 years of Sir Winston Churchill's political life, has been made available by the British Government for exhibit in the Winston Churchill Memorial & Library on the Westminister College campus here.

The display has been placed in the center exhibition area of the Memorial's partially completed museum in connection with the observance of the 25th anniversary year of Churchill's famous "Sinews of Peace" address at Westminister. It was forwarded to the College by the British Government through the office of British Consul General S. C. Stout of St. Louis, and Consul General and Mrs. Stout were present when the exhibit was opened to the public.

Dr. Robert L. D. Davidson, president of Westminister College, and Neal S. Wood of St. Louis, a member of the Board of Trustees of Westminister and chairman of the Memorial's Board of Governors, were present to receive the exhibit. Both men have been awarded the Order of the British Empire by Queen Elizabeth II for the roles they have played in strengthening Anglo/American relations.

Churchill was first elected to the House of Commons in 1900, and he retired from Parliament in 1964. He served as British Prime Minister from 1940 to 1945, when he led his nation to victory over Hitler's Germany, and again from 1951 to 1955. He retained his seat in the House of Commons until 1964, when he retired from Commons Sir Winston died January 24, 1965, at the age of 90.

The display, complete with captions, consists of a series of mounted photographic material. The panels are three feet tall, and extend 62 feet in length. It has been incorporated with other special material relating to the 25th anniversary of the "Iron Curtain" address he delivered at Westminister March 5, 1946, and is entitled "Winston Churchill–Man of Destiny."

Virgil Johnston, director of affairs of the Memorial, also announced that the British Government had made available to the Memorial's library, 4883 8x10 Xeroxed pages of material taken from documents relating to Sir Winston's political career. The papers cover events that took place between 1901 and October, 1939, and have been added to material being assembled for the research library that will be open to scholars when the facilities are completed.

Centerpoint of the Memorial is the reconstructed Christopher Wren church of St. Mary, Aldermanbury. The ruins of this war-damaged 17th century church were moved stone by stone to the Westminister campus, so that the edifice might be reconstructed as a memorial to the famous British statesman.

Ouster of Sheriff Delayed

JEFFERSON CITY--Sheriff Clyde Orton of Pemiscot County has delayed his ouster from office, attorneys said Wednesday.

The Missouri Supreme Court on March 8 ordered him ousted, but Orton's request for a re-hearing of the case apparently has temporarily blocked the order from taking effect.

Normally the court waits 15 days to issue a mandate, or final order, after its ruling. That is to allow time for requests for rehearings.

The 15 days ended Wednesday with no final order from the court. Orton asked Monday for a rehearing, and a ruling on the request is pending in the high court.

Until the court issues its mandate, Orton remains in office, his attorney and officials in the attorney general's office said.

The court ordered Orton removed from office after finding him guilty of "wilful oppression and abuse of authority" and of "wilful misconduct and neglect of duty."

Orton failed to enforce gambling and liquor laws and threatened state liquor control agents from Mississippi when they were investigating in the southeast Missouri county, five Supreme Court judges ruled.

The final ouster order would clear the way for the Pemiscot County Court to call a special election to fill a vacancy in the sheriff's office.

Until the court rules on Orton's request for a re-hearing, action in the case is stalled.

By Editorial Research Reports

LONDON--When Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber presents the budget Tuesday, the only healthy aspect of the British economy will be the surplus in the balance of payments. Last year this reached $1.5 billion. Elsewhere, hard times have spread over the land. The Sunday Times warns that collapse of industrial investment is now rivaling wage inflation and unemployment for top place in the chancellor's problem list.

So black is the picture that Prime Minister Edward Heath complained on March 13 that the battle against inflation was "already half lost before we came to power." But blaming the Labor government is not enough. Heath and Barber must do something radical if Britain is not to be sucked into a funnel of recession. Everybody is giving them plenty of advice.

The National Institute of Economic and Social Research has proposed tax relief amounting to $1.2 billion. Easing the tax bite presumably would cut unemployment and stimulate investment. The Economist suggested editorially that in addition to cutting business taxation, Barber could lower interest rates -- now at record levels. And John Cockroft, writing in the Daily Telegraph claims that the chancellor is "left with no real choise but to concentrate his tax concessions on stimulating investment and on encouraging risk-taking, innovation and effort."

Budget Day is no longer the pompous, top hat-and-morning clothes affair it once was. In fact, the Tories are worried lest Anthony Barber fumble his delivery. Above all Britain needs a restoration of confidence, and the chancellor badly bungled his first speeches. Barber does not owe his job to economic expertise but to his role in bringing Heath to power last June.

Britain's economy, declared the Sunday Times, has been bedeviled by "miscalculation, timidity, and inconsistency." Most experts agree that over the last two years there has been excessive dependence on monetary policy to control the economy. Although Heath does not appear to believe in reflation now, economists are in agreement that taxes must come down. Between 1963 and 1970, Britain's tax revenue rose by over $1,200 per household. In fact, taxes are so high that most businessmen now prefer to buy government bonds offering 8¾ per cent annual interest than to risk their capital.

Dogs and cats see well, but they cannot see different colors, so they live in a world which is gray and drab.

Ambulance Service In Bootheel Talked

MALDEN — Members of the Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council (an advisory group to the Bootheel Economic Development Council at Malden) met last week in Malden with several State Officials and a representative group of operators of ambulances in the six - county area of the Bootheel.

Dr. John K. Wallace, M.D., Director of Emergency Medical Services of the Missouri Division of Health, presented the group with a report on the present status of ambulance services in the State. Donald O'Keane, Assistant to Dr. Wallace, explained some of the pending legislation now before the State Assembly dealing with ambulance care. He pointed out that Senate Bill 238 would regulate the quality of ambulance service in the State; while Senate Bill 108 would grant authority to local communities to establish Ambulance Districts if they should choose to do so.

The Rev. Fr. Wallace Ellinger, Chairman of the six county Bootheel Comprehensive Health Council, presiding at the meeting, pointed out that the consideration of the injured or sick individual must be of primary importance; likewise, the sense of security of the entire community knowing that adequate service is available for anyone who needs it. In addition, he pointed out, it is of great importance to consider the feelings of folks who have been providing this service in the communities, most of these have been funeral homes.

Bill Welborn, a staff member of BEDC, had previously done a bit of research at the request of the Health Council. He reported as follows: 30 questionnaires were sent out to ambulance operators in the six - county area; 21 were returned; 15 of the 21 were from firms already providing ambulance services; 4 questionnaires were returned from firms who had recently terminated their ambulance service; 13 firms now providing ambulance services thought their attendants were adequately trained; 2 firms had inadequate training; 2 firms now providing ambulance service indicated they were planning to expand in the next five years; 12 firms planned no expansion; no firm considered their ambulance service financially profitable; 15 firms considered it unprofitable and only remained in business as a public service; 11 of the ambulance services now operating plan to remain in operation through this year; 4 firms indicated thay did not plan to remain in the ambulance business for the next year; 11 firms now providing ambulance services indicated they would be in favor of a non-profit system of strategically located ambulance stations which would serve our six - county Bootheel area; 3 firms were "not sure;" 2 firms opposed the idea.

All present were impressed favorably with the action taken in Pemiscot County in April of 1970, when the County Hospital under the guidance of Jack Tipton established the Pemiscot County Ambulance Service. For some present this seems to be an ideal model at this time. It was noted that the Presiding Judge of Pemiscot County was recently quoted as having said that the County Court is "well satisfied" with its operation although it is losing money.

O'Keane presented an approach to solving the ambulance situation in the Bootheel area through communities developing mutual assistance agreements. "The cost of ambulance services can be drastically cut through a coordinated approach to solving this problem" he said. "I feel that one method of obtaining this coordination is through the Comprehensive Health Planning Council." The State Division of Health is willing to assist the Bootheel area in purchasing equipment and providing advance training thru the University of Missouri Medical Center for personnel." Included among the equipment that might be able to be offered, would be 19 fully equipped ambulances and supporting communications equipment which could be secured by raising one -third of the needed funds locally and two- thirds which would come from the State.

Hints on Diet for Those Who Eat Out

COLUMBIA — The bachelor who can't or won't cook, and the traveling salesman who eats most of his meals on the road may be headed for heart trouble, says the Missouri Heart Association.

A diet emphasizing foods rich in saturated fats and cholesterol -- the bacon -and -eggs, hamburger -and -French fries, meat -with -gravy and coffee - with - cream route followed by so many who constantly eat out, can speed the development of hardening of the arteries.

Usually, says the Missouri Heart Association, the items mentioned above are loaded with animal (saturated) fats and/or cholesterol, which influence coronary artery disease, the forerunner of heart attack. Clearly, the bachelor or salesman is on a spot. However, moderate changes in eating habits may get him off it.

The Missouri Heart Association, therefore, offers this heart- helping advice, which applies to anyone who eats out often:

1. Go easy on the roll and biscuit basket. Commercial types usually are made with butter, eggs, whole milk, cream or other saturated fats.

2. Ask your waitress for margarine instead of butter. Margarine and most vegetable oils contain polyunsaturated fats, which can help lower cholesterol blood levels.

3. Ask your waitress to load up the appetizer tray. You'll relish nibbling all you want on celery, carrots, radishes, scallions, pickles and the like.

4. You also can have your fill of salads, prividing you use oil and vinegar dressing. It's tasty and your salad will have neither saturated fat nor cholesterol.

5. For the main course, concentrate on lean meats, fish and poultry, baked, broiled or roasted. if a sauce is served on your meat, scrape it off. Remove the skin from the turkey and chicken, to avoid most of the fowl fat.

6. If you like milk, try skim milk, or buttermilk and yogurt made from skim milk. You can have cocoa made with low-fat milk.

7. Naturally, you should avoid or eat sparingly of rich desserts. What's left? A large variety of fresh fruit, or canned fruit without added sugar, gelatin fruit whip, puddings if mady with low -fat milk, ice milk and sherbet in moderation.

Diet alone won't reduce the risk of heart attack, or of stroke, which follows the fat - clogging of an artery to the brain. Other important risk factors to control include high blood pressure, cigarette smoking, sedentary living, excess weight and other disease states such as diabetes.

For more information on diet, ask the Missouri Heart Association for the pamphlet "The Way to A Man's Heart." The Association also can provide information about the other risk factors.

Route 49 Job Okayed

The Missouri state highway commission has approved final location and preliminary design details for route 49 in Wayne county.

Commission action followed advertisement for a public hearing at which no one representing the general public attended. The proposed improvement begins on route 49, ¼ mile west of route A in Williamsville and proceeds in an easterly direction, ¾ mile.

The commission determined that the recommended location and design would best serve the interests of the public.

W. H. Shaw, district engineer, indicated final design would be completed followed by acquisition of necessary right-of-way. The improvement will then be placed under contract subject to the availability of funds.

Shaw stated the proposed improvement will include replacing the low-water crossing on Williams Creek with an all-weather structure.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy was the first Boy Scout to become president of the United States.

Stoddard Only Commodity County

BLOOMFIELD — The Scott County Court has unanimously approved the food stamp program for Scott County to replace the commodities program.

Court officials said that it will take a minimum of eight months before food stamps are begun.

Scott County joins Dunklin, Pemiscot, Mississippi and New Madrid Counties in adopting the food stamp program. Stoddard County is the only county in the six county Bootheel area that will not have this program due to Presiding Judge Ermer Garner asking the state director of the program to disregard the application signed in 1970 by Presiding Judge Clyde Henson and Associate Judge Leffler Lee for the stamp program.

The waiting list of counties requesting adoption of the stamps includes 12 to 14 counties. Each of them will be considered before Scott as it takes about a year.

The stamp program is federally financed for people on welfare, elderly people and persons who have inadequate funds to feed their families. The stamp program allows eligible recipients to obtain any food they choose, except imports at reduced cost and improve their diets. It is estimated that about $75,000 a month would be spent in Stoddard County to provide food for these families.

Also the county could save the cost of storage and distribution personnel salaries for the commodity program. Eligibility for food stamps is determined by the Missouri Division of Welfare, based on family income. It is estimated that 30 percent of the commodities are thrown away.

Under the food stamp program a family of four earning $360 a month could buy $106 worth of food stamps (redeemable at any store) for $82; a family of six earning $360 could buy $144 worth of stamps for $96; a family of seven can buy $162 for only $104; a family of eight could buy $180 worth of stamps for $106.

3 Quints Die But Mother Keeps Faith

LOS ANGELES (AP)-A 25-year-old housewife who gave birth to quintuplets says she still believes in fertility drugs for childless couples, although only two of the infants have survived.

"I think it's marvelous to have babies and if that's the only way you can, I'd recommend it even if they live or die or if you only have one baby," said Pearl Kaplan.

Two of Mrs. Kaplan's 10-week premature baby daughters died Wednesday from what doctors called respiratory failure. Another quint, the only boy, was stillborn.

Nixon Accused Of Stopping Highway Work

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)--The president of the Missouri State Building and Construction Trades Council Wednesday accused President Nixon of putting a stop to all highway construction in Missouri on which federal funds are used.

The president, Rep. Thomas A. Walsh, D—St. Louis, said in a statement that when Nixon suspended the Davis-Bacon Act the federal prevailing wage law "he resorted to a means which is designed to punish labor--not to correct economic problems.

"Our highway commission is in the position of not being able to sign contracts containing the prevailing wage clause since that would cause a loss of federal highway funds forthe projects, and not being able to sign contracts without the prevailing wage clause, since that would be a violation of state law.

Recently, Missouri Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth advised Robert L. Hyder, chief counsel of the Missouri Highway Commission, that the suspension of the Davis-Baxon Act also suspended Missouri's prevailing wage law.

Under the law, a contractor must pay the wage scales on public works as agreed upon for the area in which the work is being done.

Quarantine off Cyst Nematode

WASHINGTON(AP)--A federal quarantine involving soy bean cyst nematodes has been lifted, the Agriculture Department announced Wednesday.

The quarantine had restricted the interstate movement from designated areas of soil, root crops, soil-moving equipment and other items that might have spread the pest.

Officials said the nematode, a tiny soil parasite, now has spread through most areas where soybeans are grown but that the pest can be controlled by crop rotations.

Mail Box

Dear Charles,

March 15, 1971

Thanks a lot for again sending me a copy of the Standard's Progress Edition. I am always interested in seeing how the other half lives! And in looking over the various new homes I see that the Blanton family lives high on the hog (if you will pardon such an expression). I was particulary impressed by the description of the master bathroom -- pool shaped tub enclosed in marble with gold fixtures and a gold chandelier. If you had only had that on your Canadian trip your early morning visits might have been a little more pleasant, if not any more productive!

From the C.L. Blanton III name I am aware that it is not you who calls this home, but it quite apparent it is in the family, and perhaps your own equals this.

I often think of our trip together that year and have never ceased to marvel how we all came through it alive and on both feet. In my column in my old paper (which I still write each week) I have been giving my readers a review of that trip during the past few weeks and it served to bring back many memories to me, some of which had been put on paper and some not.

I spend most of my time now caring for my wife who had a stroke two years ago, doing housework, cooking, etc. It's not the kind of retirement we planned on, but it's what we have, and it works pretty well.

Sincerely,
Stewart

P.S.--Also A clip

G.S. Bennett

The first portion of this column this week will be a sort of sequel to those of the past two or three weeks, when I was describing my trip in the Province of Ontario in 1955 as one of a party of about 30 U.S. newpapermen who were guest of the Province's Department of Travel and Publicity.

One of our group, who became better known during our trip than some of the others, was Charlie Blanton of Sikeston, Missouri. He was everpresent, ready to lead in any special doings that were inaugurated and was generally the life of the party. He was the head of the Daily Standard of Sikeston. Each year the paper published a greatly enlarged edition, which is titled the "Progress Edition." Ever since our trip, Charlies has each year sent me a copy of this special edition, and this year's copy just came a couple of days ago.

From general information in the special edition, I would say that Sikeston is a city somewhere in size between Bennington and Rutland. The paper has circulation of about 10.000 (and this special edition carried 120 pages). It is the center of quite an industrial area, that is growing each year. The Welcome Wagon Club counted nearly 270 new families in the community in 1970.

The special edition carried a great number of pictures of new homes and businesses in the community during the year. I would guess that more than 100 new homes were pictured and an article states that publishers realized that by no means all the new places were shown. Of these new homes shown nearly every one was a ranch type, that is all one floor.

This is always an interesting edition and I am glad to have the opportunity of seeing what is going on in this midwestern city. I think that other membes of the Blanton family now have active charge of the paper, but I am sure that my friend Charlie still has a firm hand on the helm of the business.

Mr. Charlie Blanton,
and Staff
The Sikeston Standard,
Your Issue of 3/20th,

Poor Charley Says:— And I say, how dumb can some intelligent heads of our Government display.

I quote:— Mr. Milton Eisenhower, chairman of the National committee on the causes and prevention of violence has spoken,

Sayeth he:— Ownership of handguns by individual citizens is so dangerous that it must be a National policy to eliminate them.

I quote:— I wonder if Mr. Eisenhower really believes, that if such law is passed, that the underground, such as those whos desire, and intentions are to destroy our beloved AMERICA, and our way of life which we cherish, and must protect, not by sending our Boy's over seas to die for no aparent reason to do so, only to create more hateret toward our beloved U.S.A., but to try to be friends to all Nations, stay at home, tend to own affairs, but be well prepaired.

NOW! Is it possible that Mr. Eisenhower really believes that the criminals in our land, inspired by the Communist heads of their Countries, would flock to the required destinations to turn in their fire arms etc? NO INDEED THEY WOULD NOT, and how would Mr. Eisenhower force them to do so, if our Government is unable to stop their criminal action?

The law abiding Citizens of our beloved Country, have, and will continue to have handguns etc., for their own protection, of life and property, the time does not seem far off, when we will be forced to stand on our own hind legs, in order to get results, since we can not be protected by guards, who's salaries are paid by the tax payers.

HUD Okays Renewal Outlay

CHARLESTON — Approval of Charleston's $3,564,762 urban renewal grant by the Department of Housing and Urban Development in Washington was announced Wednesday by Senators Stuart Symington and Thomas Eagleton and Congressman Bill Burlison.

A telegram from Senator Symington's office to The Enterprise - Courier was received at 4:30 p.m., stating that the reservation of a grant in that amount has been approved. It will be used for planning, land clearance and redevelopment, and modernization of public facilities in the Charleston urban renewal area.

According to City Manager Dick Martin, the normal procedure once the grant reservatinon is made is for HUD to advance funds for hiring a local planning staff. The initial planning grant applied for was about $250,000.

The urban renewal area as designated by the local board and approved by the City Council is now eligible for land clearance and redevelopment once the final plan is prepared and approved. General boundaries of the renewal area are as follows: Starting at Main and Marshall Streets, go east to First, down First to Court, down the alley beside the library to Franklin and north to the railroad track, follow the railroad track to a point behind Charleston Auction Co., and go south to Marshall, down Marshall to Elm, zigzag eastward to Main and return to Marshall.

Charleston voters approved establishment of the local land clearance for redevelopment authority (urban renewal board) by a 6-1 margin in February, 1970, after an information campaign carried out by Mr. Martin and other interested persons. Preparation of the final plan is expected to take at least another year, before actual clearance operations could begin, according to sources on the urban renewal board.

It makes possession of a small amount of marijuana a misdemeanor instead of a felony.

Other bills sent to the Senate would:

Prohibit the business of strikebreaking or the transportation of strikebreakers.

Provide unemployment compensation for employes who are out of work because of a lockout.

Permit earlier adoption of abandoned children.

East Prairie Seniors Chosen For Tour

EAST PRAIRIE — Two East Prairie high school seniors have been selected to tour Europe this summer with the "Young Americans in Concert."

Miss Marlys Davis and Steve England were selected for the touring company on the basis of competitive auditions in which young singers from all over the United States participated.

Both active in choral and band programs at East Prairie High School, the two students will spend a total of 28 days in Europe, with stops in London, Paris, Rome, Zurich, Brussels and Vienna.

The "Young Americans" will be touring with an orchestra, also made up of high school students.

Miss Davis and England both plan to pursue musical careers after leaving high school. Marlys, a student of Mrs. Carl Muench of Charleston, plans to attend SEMo State College as a scholarship student, and Steve, who studies with Gordon Beaver of Sikeston will attend Missouri University, Columbia, on a music scholarship.

Marlys is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Davis, and Steve is the son of Mrs. Joan England and the late Charles England.

Orioles, Reds Having Problems

Any resemblance between the Baltimore Orioles and Cincinnati Reds of today and those of last October's World Series is purely coincidental.

The Orioles'—problems are strictly on the field, where they dropped their fifth in a row Sunday, losing to the Atlanta Braves 4-3. Newly acquired Pat Dobson, who is supposed to be the Birds' fourth 20-game winner, bore the brunt of the Braves' attack. He was tagged for 11 hits, including three singles apiece by Mike Lum and Clete Boyer and a double and single by Ralph Garr.

The Reds won their game, edging Pittsburgh 5-4 by scoring a run on three singles in the last of the ninth after Al Oliver's homer tied the score in the top of the inning. The already injury-riddled National League champs lost catcher Johnny Bench for a day or so with bruised finger when he was struck by a pitch from Bob Moose.

In addition to center fielder Bobb Tolan and shortstop Dave Concepcion, who are on the disabled list, the Reds announced that pitcher Wayne Simpson and possibly left-hander Jim Merritt would remain in Florida for more warm-weather work when the Big Red Machine limps north.

Both had arm trouble late last season and it has continued this spring.

The st. Louis Cardinals' stars were in fine shape, though. Joe Torre belted three home runs and fireballing Bob Gibson hurled five scoreless innings in a 13-2 rout of Minnesota.

The Boston Red Sox, usually death on left-halders at friendly Fenway Park, worked a little of their magic on Detroit southpaw Fred Scherman. George Scott slammed two homers and Reggie Smith and Billy Congligliaro in a 5-3 triumph.

Twelfth-inning doubles by Donn Clendenon and Ken Singleton-the latter a fly ball misplayed by outfielders Bobby Murcer and Danny Cater-accounted for three runs as the New York Mets defeated the New York Yankees 5-2 and squared their spring subway series at one game apiece.

Mike Epstein homered and shortstop Toby Harrah started a triple play and two DPs as the Washington Senators downed Kansas City 4-2.

The Philadelphia Phillies ripped ace reliever Wilbur Wood for four runs in the ninth, including Bobby Pfeils's two-run double, and overtook, the Chicago White Sox 7-6.

Cleveland's Sudden Sam McDowell was raked for 10 runs and 10 hits in four innings—including a three-run double by Ernie Banks—in a 154 romp for the Chicago Cubs.

On the other hand, there were two shutouts. Juan Marichal and Jerry Johnson combined for a seven-hitter as the San Francisco Giants blanked California 2-0. And Houston's Denny Lemaster and New York's Gary Waslewski yielded one hit apiece as a combined squad of Astros, Yankees and Braves nipped Montreal 1-0.

Veteran Dick Ellsworth pitched seven strong innings in a 7-2 triumph for the Milwaukee Brewers over Japan's Tokyo Lotte Orions. The Los Angeles Dodgers scored a pair of eight-inning runs on Willie Davis' single, a double by Wes Parker and Bill Buckner's single and shaded Houston 3-1. Rookie Dave Robinson singled home the tying and lead runs in the eighth inning and San Diego beat Oakland 6-4.

IF THE FIRST WEEK of Wal-Marts fishing contest is any indication of the size of fish yet to come, some state records might be in jeopardy. Saturday, Gary Teeters of Parma brought in a seven pound, five ounce large mouth bass that he caught at Wappappello Lake while fishing with his brother, Darrell, both pictured. Mike Fansler of the Wal-Mart sporting goods department, is at right. "I was coasting into the bank in about four or six feet of water when I hung the bass," Teeters recalled. He caught it on Maraboo with pork rind.

Portlak Accepts Invitation

MARSHALL — Ed Portlak of the Kansas City Chiefs has accepted an invitation to conduct a football clinic at the third Missour Special Olympics.

"The football clinic will be just one of the features of this year's Special Olympics, which will take place June 18-19 at Missouri Valley College in Marshall," said Issam B. Amary, Olympics director.

"There will be clinics in other sports, conducted by well-known persons in the sports world. There will be the usual competitive track and field events, and there will be a banquet and dance for the retarded persons from all over the state who will participate."

Amary explained that the Special Olympics program is sponsored internationally by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation in order to provide an incentive for the development of physical fitness among retarded persons. The Olympics program offers an opportunity for retarded person to compete against others of similar age and ability levels in carefully supervised games and skills.

"We've had two years in which to gain experience in managing this program," said Mr. Amary. "We feel that the 1972 program will truly be a success."

Information can be obtained by writing to Mr. Amary at the Marshall State School and Hospital, Marshall, or by writing to the administrators of any of the regional diagnostic clinics.

SEMO State Sets Cage Invitational

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A two-day holiday invitational basketball tournament will be hosted by Southeast Missouri State College next Dec. 17 and 18, it was disclosed today by Southeast Missouri's head coach, Bob Cradic, who recently completed his first year as head coach at the college.

Three Tennessee teams will provide the opposition for the Indians in the tourney which will be called the Girardeau Classic. Cradic identified the schools as Christian Brothers College of Memphis, Austin Peay State University of Clarksville, and the University of Tennessee - Martin.

The tournament will be held at Houck Field House on the Southeast Missouri campus.

The Indians will also play a regular season game in Cape Girardeau with CBC and a regular season game on the road at UT-Martin.

Cradic said next season's basketball schedule is rapidly taking shape with only some minor shuffling left to do. One major change will be a preponderance of games at home early in the season.

The season just completed saw the Indians on the road for seven of their first nine games, and their record dipped to 6-9 before a late spurt brought about the final mark of 13-10. It was the first winning year for Southeast Missouri cagers since 1966-67.

Besides CBC and UT-Martin, other new opponents on the Indians' schedule for next year will be Southern Illinois University — Edwardsville and possibly Southeastern Louisiana.

Missing for the first time in several years will be Washington University of St. Louis, Arkansas State University of Jonesboro, and Eastern Illinois University of Charleston.

The holiday tournament will be the first ever attempted exclusively by Southeast Missouri. However, the college did host the old MIAA holiday tournament in past year.

The Indians have a 1-1 record against Austin Peay, a NCAA University Division team and member of the Ohio VAlley Conferce. They are 7-2 against UT-Martin. Available records show no previous games between Southeast Missouri and CBC.

BHS Short On Experience

BLOOMFIELD---Coach Ken Davis has only four lettermen returning to his high school baseball squad, which finished 10-4 last season.

Paul Marion, the leading hitter, who plays centerfield and also pitches, will be expected to carry most of the offensive load for the Wildcats.

Intercollegiate Trap and Skeet Tournament Set at Linn Creek

LINN CREEK---Sharpshooting students representing a cross-section of American colleges and universities will convene at the shooting grounds of the Missouri Trap Association over the weekend of May 7, to compete in the third annual Intercollegiate Trap and Skeet Tournament.

Upwards of 200 students are expected to participate in the event, which is sponsored by the Association of College Unions - International in cooperation with the Winchester-Western Division of Olin Corporation and which, this year, will be hosted by the University of Missouri.

According to Barry M. Wilson, tournament director, applications for the tournament will be accepted through April 15 and should be sent to Mr. Wilson at Student Union, University of Connecticut, Storrs, Conn. 06268. Participation is open to any boy or girl who is a bona fide registered college student, and application may be made on either an individual or team basis. The entry fee is $10 per person per event and all applicants must submit certified scores based on 100 targets for classification purposes. Postal scores and/or regional meet scores are acceptable.

The tournament will consist of 100 targets of International Skeet, 100 targets of Modified Claybird, 200 targets of 12-Gauge Skeet and 200 targets of 16-Yard Trap. The actual competition will be fired on Saturday, May 8, and Sunday, May 9, with Friday, May 7, given over to registration and practice shooting. All individual and team awards will be based on the total of 100 International-type targets and the 200 American-type targets in the trap and skeet events. Winchester-Western will provide shotguns as prizes for the high gun awards in American-type trap and skeet, and NRA International shooting medals will be given to the top three shooters in both International Skeet and Modified Claybird. First— and second-place trophies will be awarded in team events and in all classifications in individual American-style trap and skeet events, to individual winners in International-style trap and skeet events and to women shooters in all events. Additionally, Winchester-Western Blue Ribbon patches will be awarded to all winning teams and individual champions. Winchester long-run patches and NRA International Skeet and International Claybird straight patches will be presented to all those shooters who qualify.

Accomodations Available

Each participant is responsible for reserving his own living quarters for the weekend. However, this is not expected to be a problem as Linn Creek is located in the Osage Beach section of the popular Lake of the Ozarks resort area and ample accomodations will be available. In addition, the Missouri Trap Association will have a large tenting area on its shooting grounds and both the Hettrick Manufacturing Company and the Turner Corporation will provide tents, propane stoves and lanterns free of charge to those who wish to use this area. Sanitary facilities will also be provided but each camper will be responsible for his own meals and bedding.

Olympic Shooters

The Annual Intercollegiate Trap and Skeet Tournament was instituted by Winchester-Western in 1969 with its objective to develop students to represent the United States in Olympic trap and skeetcompetitions. According to Jim Dee, recreational shooting and marksmanship manager for Winchester-Western, the idea was spawned when skeet was added to the Olympic field events for the first time during the 1968 games in Mexico City.

The 1969 tournament marked the first time that a national representation of college students met in shoulder-to-shoulder competition involving both American- and International-style trap and skeet shooting. During the first two years, the competition was conducted at the University Gun Club in Tiffin, Iowa, and was hosted by the University of Iowa. Since that time, interest in the event has so increased that many schools are conducting regional tournaments in their own areas.

Shooting and Hunting Education Program

The Intercollegiate Trap and Skeet Tournament is one of several activities conducted by Mr. Dee as director of Winchester-Western's shooting and hunting recreation program. This program was developed by Winchester-Western for the purpose of increasing interest in recreational shooting on the college level. Included among its other activities are a series of clinics in the shooting sports which are conducted as part of the national program of the Lifetime Sports Education Project, a division of the National Education Association.

As a direct result of the Winchester-Western shooting and hunting education program, 230 American colleges and universities are now involved in intercollegiate trap and skeet competitions.

Dexter Golfers Head SEMO State Team

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Coach Carroll Williams of Southeast Missouri State College has reduced his golf roster to 13, and the team is preparing for its season opening round Tuesday (March 30) against Arkansas State University in Jonesboro.

Williams and company have a ready-made goal for the season--improve upon last spring's dismal 2-9 dual record and last place finish in the MIAA.

The golf roster lists six players who were around last year, but only three of them are among the frontrunners at present, according to Williams. The three are junior Dave Agey of Dexter, senior Francis Gagnepain of Perryville, and senior Paul Smith.

Actually it is the "new blood" which gives Williams cause to believe his squad may improve upon last season's mark.

For example, Patton, though listed as a newcomer, played two years for Southeast Missouri and has returned to the squad after a stint in the service. And Hundelt turned down a golf scholarship at the University of Missouri-St. Louis in order to attend college away from home.

Following Tuesday's match, the Indians will journey to Memphis, Tenn., April 7 to play Hope College and Southwestern of Memphis.

Their first of only two matches at home will not come until April 19 when they entertain Arkansas State.

Williams has had great difficulty scheduling home matches due to the fact that country club facilities are not available, and the Southeast Missouri team's home course is the nine-hole Cape Jaycees Public Golf Course.

Lowe New Chairman Of Athletic Committee

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Henry T. Lowe, professor of law, was appointed chairman of the committee on intercollegiate athletics at the University of Missouri -Columbia today by Interim-Chancellor Herbert W. Schooling.

Lowe will succeed Dean Pinkney C. Walker, on leave of absence as a member of the Federal Power Commission in Washington.

The athletic committee is the administrative agency of the UMC athletic program and is composed of faculty-alumni members. Lowe has been a committee member along with Walker, Dean Arthur Nebel, Dean Bob G. Woods, Prof. Richard S. Kirkendall, and alumni Jim W. Farley of Farley, Jack Senter of Kansas City, and Fred Mayer of St. Louis.

Henry Lowe

Lowe has been a member of the UMC law faculty since 1959. He is a graduate of Colorado College and Harvard University. He was in general law practive for six years in Portland, Ore. Recently he was named James Lewis Parks professor of law, one of the named professorships created after a gift from the Dorothy H. and Lewis Rosenstiel foundation.

"As you know, the athletic program is in many ways the most sensitive operation on the campus," Chancellor Schooling wrote Lowe in confirming his appointment. "For this reason the chairmanship of the committee on athletics is a most important post."

Dean Walker had been serving as committee chairman this year when he relieved, upon request, Dean Nebel to enable Nebel to continue in the demanding duties as faculty representative to the Big Eight conference.

Torre Hikes Figures

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)--The St. Louis Cardinals tagged starter Luis Tiant for two quick runs in the first inning Sunday, then kept up the pressure to defeat the Minnesota Twins, 13-2, in exhibition baseball.

The Redbirds' Joe Torre chalked up three homers, the first one good for two runs in the first inning.

Torre connected with a drive over the right field fence in the third and hit another two-run blast in the sixth inning.

Cardinals ace Bob Gibson turned in five innings of score-less pitching to win the one-sided contest.

Torre's strong hitting brought his average to .354 in spring training and helped St. Louise move to a 12-11 record in Florida.

The Twins, defending champions of the American League's Western Division, dropped to 9-12 in preseason play.

St. Louis faces Minnesota again today in a game at the Twins' camp in Orlando, Fla.

Matthews Fourth in 60-Dash

COLUMBIA--Kansas City Central rolled up 32 points to take its seventh class L indoor track title in nine years Saturday at Brewer fieldhouse. Soldan's Tigers wound up second with 25 and pre-meet favorite Sumner was third with 12.

Sikeston High's David Matthews placed fourth in the 60-yard dash during Satuday's running of the state indoor Class L track meet, posting a 6.5 time and giving Southeast Missouri its only points in the meet.

Indian Notes

--Southeast Missouri scored 1997 points during the season, and their opponents had the same combined total. This was enough for the Indians to lead the MIAA in per game average scoring, but it was also the second highest per game average allowed opponents by loop teams. Only Lincoln University of Jefferson City allowed the opposition more points per game -- 09.8. And the Tigers won but six contests all winter.

--Two of the top five scorers in the MIAA were Southeast Missouri Indians. They were Jim Anderson of Schererville, Ind., who had a 23.1 average to top the league, and Andrew Reid of St. Louis who, thanks to a late season spurt, finished with a 16.2 per game average.

--Reid was also second in the conference in field goal accuracy, hitting 50.5 per cent of his shots, a figure topped only by the University of Missouri--Rolla's Rich Peters, who was accurate with 51.7 per cent of his shots. The 6-5 junior was also the third best rebounder in the league with a 10.3 per game average, slightly less than the 12.2 rebounding average of Charles Currie of Northeast Missouri State College, Kirksville.

--They say basketball's a game for the tall man now. But Reid, at 6-5, stands two inches taller than any of the other players named to the first team All -MIAA squad.

--Junior Mike Payne of Zalma hit 86.2 per cent of his free throws to lead the MIAA. It would have been good enough for national ranking but for the fact that Payne did not shoot the minimum number required by the NCAA to be included in the national stats. Even so, the 5-11 guard helped preserve several Indian victories with his eagle eye at the line.

Moral: Statistics don't always tell the story -- at least notthe whole story.

Coach Marvin Rosengarten, a 1955 graduate of Southeast Missouri, is strictly a team man when it comes to his sport -- track.

Many colleges and coaches seem to focus on their outstanding individuals, who travel around entering meets in all parts of the country and shooting for national record.

But talk to Rosengarten about track, and most of the conversation is in terms of the team. Not that the Indians don't have outstanding individuals, but it is the team aspect of the sport which the Indian head man emphasizes.

The only Southeast Missouri outdoor track and field record which has not been broken in the last five years is the long jump, set by some fellow named McLane who leaped 23 feet, 6½ inches back in 1938.

Of the Indians' other records, one was set in 1966, two in 1967, five in 1968, nine in 1969, and five in 1970.

(* * *

By all measures except class rank, Larry Williams of Chaffee is the "senior" member of the Southeast Missouri golf team. He's a retired serviceman now in his freshman year at the college. "And he's a pretty fair golfer," says golf coach Carroll Williams.

Reflections on a 13-10 season, and facts gleaned from the final MIAA basketball statistics:

--Southeast Missouri had a better overall team field goal shooting percentage than any other member of the conference: 44.4. But the Indians' opponents, on the whole, also shot better (47.0) than did opponents against other league teams, causing coach Bob Cradic to remark, "I've never had a season when the opposing teams shot so well.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Johnny Unitas scholarships will be presented tonight to five Baltimore high school seniors—William Brusilow, Gilman School; Paul Ellis, McDonogh School; Harold P. Jones, Gilman School; Harold J. Laurent, Parkville Senior High School and Mitchell Sapp, Pikesville Senior High School.

The scholarship fund is set up in the name of the Baltimore Colts' quarterback by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Tax Relief for Elderly Wins Committee Vote

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)–A bill to give property tax relief for senior citizens was approved Tuesday night by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The bill, referred to as the "circuit breaker," would give a credit of up to $300 on homestead owned or rented by Missourians past 65 years of age.

The proposal calls for those qualified to pay the tax, then file for a rebate on his annual state income tax return. Rep. Jack J. Schramm, D-St. Louis, is sponsor of the bill.

At another committee hearing, Paul Williams, legal assistant for Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, explained a bill to clean up election campaigns and put a lid on campaign spending.

But the House Elections Committee took no action on the proposal.

Williams called the measure, sponsored jointly by Democratic floor leader Richard J. Rabbitt, D-St. Louis and Rep. Don Gralike, D-St. Louis, a "top priority item" of the governor's. He said the proposal would make it impossible for a candidate to plead ignorance of advertising since it calls for his signature on the ads. This also would eliminate the candidate's denial of any knowledge of ads saying friends picked up the tab for advertising.

"This would make the outright purchase of an office impossible," Williams said.

In other committee action Tuesday night, the House Ways and Means Committee heard testimony on a revenue-sharing bill which would raise the sales tax from three to five cents on a dollar and rebate the increase to cities and counties.

Rep. Eugene Mazzuca, D-St. Louis, said the cities and counties would receive the money from the state on a population basis plus what he called the "urban crisis" factor. Mazzuca took the position that the urban areas are facing a greater financial need than rural ones.

He predicted the increase would produce $244 million to share with cities and counties and, at the same time, add $28 million to the state.

About $45 million would be gained by exemptions Mazzuca's bill proposes to delete. Under his bill, charitable and not-for-profit institutions would no longer be allowed sales and use tax exemptions.

Mazucca said they were allowed only property tax exemption under the constitution and should pay sales tax.

He offered the committee an amendment taking out a section which would tax newsprint. He said he based this on an opinion from the attorney general.

No action was taken on the proposal.

A NEW MOVIE TIE-IN THE OWL AND THE PUSSYCAT

by Richard Hubbard

(Avon V2373/75cents/160pp.)

To coincide with the opening of the Columbia Pictures/Rastar release, THE OWL AND THE PUSSYCAT, starring Barbara Streisand and George Segal,-Avon is publishing a novel by Richard Hubbard, based on Buck Henry's screenplay.

THE OWL AND THE PUSSYCAT is a bitter-sweet comedy about two hostile neighbors--a prostitue who calls herself a model and a book clerk masquerading as an author--who take up co-habitation when his complaints about her going-on next door cause her to be evicted from her apartment.

The Pacific Ocean's Mariana Trench is 36,198 feet deep, according to the latest National Geographic Atlas of the World.

Oil and Water Mix at Rolla

ROLLA -- This is the age for mixing oil and water.

Frequent oil spills have taken their tolls on both the east and west coasts of the United States. To help take care of the matter when an oil spill occurs, research is going on in a University of Missouri - Rolla mechanical engineering project.

Drs. Ronald Reisbig and Darryl Alofs in the department are studying the effect of waves on oil spill movements. Their theoretical calculations indicate that waves affect the movements of an oil spill to about the same degree as does the wind. Studies measure the rate at which the waves make the oil slick move.

These experiments are conducted in a wave tank that is equipped with a wave generator. The goal is to determine a way to calculate the time slicks will arrive at certain points and to track down the slicks' points of origin.

"The ability to accurately predict the spreading and migration of oil films," researchers say, "is necessary for the effective mobilization of available clean -up resources. Conversely, in the event that no party admits to spilling the oil, the predictive ability could be used as legal evidence of financial responsibility for the damages caused by an oil spill."

The research is sponsored by the United States Coast Guard.

Self-Service Gasoline Stations Gain Popularity

NEW YORK (AP) — In somewhat the same manner as self-service laundries caught on in the immediate post-World War II years and automatic carwashers some years later, self-service gasoline stations now show signs of growing popularity.

There is little evidence yet of a business boom, the statistics are beginning to look very bullish.

In 1969 there were about 2,500 such stations, according to industry sources. Now the figure is estimated to be probably as high as 7,500, out of a national total of 220,000 stations.

In addition, several big name companies now are taking the development more seriously than just a few years ago, when most of the stations were manned by small proprietors, including many grocers.

The greatest activity so far has been in the West and South, and the chief reason given for acceptance there generally involve the availability and cost of labor, remote locations and entrepreneurial spirit.

For the proprietor, self-service is a labor-saving device, but for the customer it is hardly that. More accurately, the selfservice station is a labor-transfer device, relieving the seller of chores by passing them on the the buyer.

This concept, ingenious in its simplicity, already has rewarded many thousands of small businessmen who note that while labor for hire costs money, customer labor often is plentiful, inexpensive, uncomplaining and easily exploited.

Consider this suggestive copy that Jersey Standard's subsidiary, AMF Tel Tron, uses to sell its story in the rapidly growing South California market, and then judge for yourself if customer labor pays off:

"About 35 per cent (of installations) are convenience stores with a couple of pumps or more outside as an extra business. Some of these stores are pumping enough gasoline to clear $500 profit per month. This rate would pay for equipment in less than a year.

"The only work of the owner or operator is to fill the water squirter once a day and install a fresh supply of wiper towels."

Broadly speaking, two types are being used. In one, the flow of fuel is controlled from within the store by an electric device. The customer fills up and then comes in to pay.

In the other, a money counter is attached to the pump, restricting the flow to the amount paid for.

Two serious drawbacks involve the law and social custom.

Up, Up and Away Go Air Fare Rates

By Editorial Research Reports

WASHINGTON--Higher air fares on flights across the North Atlantic go into effect April 1. They remain in effect until March 31.

If you're planning to take the wife and kids on that long-promised trip to Europe this summer, fasten your seatbelts. Economy and excursion fares are going up on flights across the North Atlantic. The increases average about 8 per cent depending on the type of flight and when you leave home.

International airlines are hiking fares in hopes of offsetting the deficits threatening to send them into a tail spin. Pan American reports that a 17-28 day round trip excursion fare between New York and London this summer will cost between $322 and $382. Previous fares were from $300 to $350 for a 14-28 day trip.

The fare increases will provide about $38 million in additional revenues for Pan American and Trans World Airlines. An official of the International Air Transport Association, which has 107 members,* said the boosts are not across the board. Fare increases on longer runs will be less, he said, ranging from 3 per cent on a New York to Rome flight to 1 per cent on a New York to Istanbul trip.

The airlines problems stem from a combination of high financing and operating costs, and dwindling traffic due to the recession. Ironically, the 350-seat Boeing 747 jets increased passenger capacity at the very time passenger growth was declining. The Air Transport Association has estimated that during 1970, the increase in revenue passenger miles -- international and domestic -- was only 4.8 per cent. This was less than half the 1969 increase.

Transatlantic travel has been growing by leaps and bounds. The I. A. T. A. reports that 7,201,789 passengers flew across the North Atlantic last year on scheduled flights of member airlines -- an increase of 20.1 per cent over 1969. This, in turn, was 14 per cent higher than in 1968. Estimates on boosts in fares over recent years are hard to come by, but an I.A.T.A. spokesman thought they might average 5 to 7 per cent.*

To combat declining revenues, Pan American has undertaken a study of its routes aimed at increasing profits.* "We may have to take drastic steps -- suspension, termination, sale of routes, even," Najeeb E. Halaby, the firm's president, has declared.

The Civil Aeronautics board voted 3-2 to approve the increase in international fares, with the dissenters declaring the boosts "may well drive so many discretionary travelers out of the European market that the carriers' revenues will actually decline." It may also turn more budget-minded travelers to what has been called "an extensive underground travel industry that makes low-cost travel available to legally ineligible passengers."

Illicit charter flights -- which save passengers as much as 50 per cent of the scheduled fares -- gross millions of dollars a year. CAB regulations restrict cheap charter flights to "affinity groups" -- clubs, labor unions and similar organizations. Members are supposed to have enrolled at least six months in advance of the trip. E t some travel agents set up their own groups that leave on weekly schedules and wink at the membership regulations.

Last year, the CAB filed 12 suits involving illegal charters. But the authorities admit there is little they can do but stop the most flagrant violations. But with fares going up, a bargain is too much to resist for a growing number of travelers.

Egypt Believed Strengthened By 90 MIGs Since Late '70

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has bolstered Egypt's air defenses with about 90 more MIG21 jet interceptors since late last year, U.S. intelligence reports indicate.

The Soviets also have strengthened Egypt's force of SU7 and earlier model MIG fighter bombers which could support ground troops, Pentagon sources said.

According to recent U.S. intelligence reports, the Egyptians have 220 MIG21s, 206 MIG17s and MIG15s, and 120 SU7s.

This compares with an earlier assessment that, as of last December, Egypt's Russianbuilt air force owned 128 MIG21s, 150 MIG17s and 15s, and 97 SU7s.

A small force of old bombers has remained stable in numbers.

The extent of any Russian buildup of surface-to-air missiles in Egypt in recent months was not available, but as of the end of 1970, U.S. military sources said, the SAM defenses were formidable--360 SA2 launchers and 120 SA3 launchers.

The SA2 is fired at high-flying planes, the SA3 against lower flying attackers.

The increase in Egypt'smilitary power during the months of the cease-fire has included significantly more MI8 troop-carrying helicopters and huge artillery pieces as well as other equipment, the sources said.

The new materiel was shipped through the Dardanelles in a stream of ships checked to their Egyptian destinations by U.S. reconnaissance planes. U.S. officials are silent on other means of gathering information on Soviet military shipments.

Meanwhile, the United States has been furnishing Israel more gear under a $500 million appropriation vote by the last Congress.

Concerto to Be Performed For First Time

CAPE GIRARDEAU--A concerto especially written for the Southeast Missouri State College symphony orchestra will be performed for the first time in public April 1 at the orchestra's spring concert.

Dallas Tjaden, director of the orchestra, said the premiere performance of "Concerto for Harp and Orchestra" will feature as guest harpist, Mrs. Ayako Watanabe, a member of the St. Louis Symphony. The college's orchestra is made up of 45 students.

The concert will begin at 8 p.m. in Rose Theatre of the Language Arts Building. It is free and open to the public.

Commissioned by the college two years ago, the concerto was composed by Dr. Francis Johnson Pyle, professor of theory and musicology at Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa. It was to have been finished last spring, but was delayed because the composer had a heart attack.

Tjaden said, to his knowledge, this is the first time Southeast Missouri State has ever commissioned a piece of music especially for one of its musical groups.

Besides the concerto, the concert will include "Symphony in G Major" by Antonin Dvorak and "The Emperor Waltz" by Johann Strauss.

Dr. Pyle will be on campus April 1 to attend the concert.

Bond Stunned by Call for Stamp Transfer Probe

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — State Auditor Christopher (Kit) Bond expressed surprise Wednesday that a member of the Missouri House wants an investigation of Bond's action in turning over $4,440 in postage stamps to the Missouri Senate.

Rep. E. J. (Lucky Cantrell, D-Overland, House appropriations chairman, introduced the resolution calling for the investigation. He said there could be a conflict of interest involved since a Senate committee now is considering Bond's appropriation for the coming year.

Republican Bond said "conflict of interest?" Then he added that Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes had called Tuesday and asked when he planned to provide some of the stamps for the House.

Bond discovered a batch of old stamps with a total value of $31,560 when he took over the auditor's office from Democrat Haskell Holman.

With Cantrell's investigation proposal hanging, Bond said he presumed he had better wait for a decision there before providing any stamps for the House, as he had intended to do.

Bond said he provided his field men with some of the stamps but presumed he had $24,000 or $25,000 worth still locked up.

Cantrell's resolution calls for a committee of five House members to investigate whether there is a conflict of interests.

"If such a give-away gesture," Cantrell said in his resolution, "although possibly quite sincere and honest in intent, were to be sanctified and imitated by department heads and other elected officials, the procedure of appropriating would be subverted and the legislative branch would have no way of controlling what an agency received from general revenue since agencies and departments could subsidize each other..."

The resolution was to be sent to committee.

Included among bills advanced by the House was one to provide state financing for auxiliary services and special education for pupils of nonpublic schools.

It is a new version of the earlier "shared time" bill that regularly has been defeated in the Missouri legislature. This one, too, seemed headed for trouble. The vote on advancement was 62-60 and it will need at least 82 affirmative votes for final House passage.

How do you grow Amiben™-clean beans at the lowest possible cost?

More than 100,000 soybean farmers depend upon Amiben, spray or granules, band applied using a planter-mounted attachment. It's the most economical way.

In most soybean areas, normal rainfall carries the Amiben into the top layer of soil, providing outstanding and dependable control of most annual grasses and weeds. There are exceptions. If soil moisture is low when you plant, and rainfall doesn't come in 3 to 5 days, then use your rotary hoe. This accomplishes a light soil incorporation, and chips up any emerging weeds.

Here are a few suggestions along that line: Use your rotary hoe any time, every time you: 1—use Amiben in low rainfall areas, 2—plant into marginal soil moisture and rainfall doesn't follow in 3-5 days, 3—apply Amiben after beans have been planted.

Farmers know that Amiben is today's most effective soybean herbicide. It is the only product that gives dependable control of most annual grasses and weeds—and doesn't let big broadleafs like ragweed, lambsquarters, velvetleaf (buttonweed), and smartweed escape. Make Amiben your choice. It captures them all. That's why farmers have made Amiben No. 1.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

When should you transplant tiny seedlings that develop from the seeds you sow? Wait until the second set of leaves begin to spread.

Just about this time, you can figure the seedlings are becoming crowded in their seed bed, box or pot and are ready for their individual homes, or at least a less crowded area.

You are ready now to transplant them into individual pots made of peat that can be sunk right into the permanent spot in the garden when the soil warms.

Some varieties are more difficult to transplant than others, but many flower and vegetable seeds are easy to move. Be sure the medium holding the seedlings is quite moist, but drained. Have the pots and fresh growing medium ready.

There are a number of inert materials such as perlite, sphagnum moss or vermiculite, or a combination that may be used. You'll have to add water soluble fertilizer to these to provide nourishment. Or you can use soil, sand or granular peat moss, or a combination of fine texture. Sieve to accomplish the fineness and wet thoroughly. This will help tiny roots develop.

There are special transplanting tools but a fork or small knife is good to lift small bunches of seedlings from the planter. Plants that cling together may be separated by pulling them apart gently with your fingers.

Finally, the seedling should be centered in a pot three-quarters filled with the growing medium. Holding the plant upright, add more of the medium around the roots, and pack down firmly, leaving room at the top for future waterings.

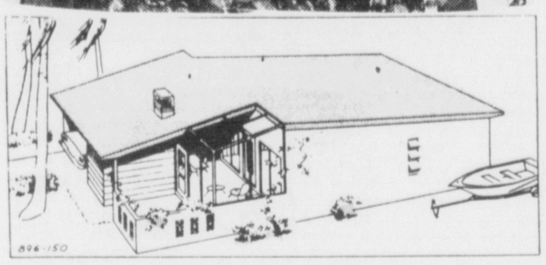
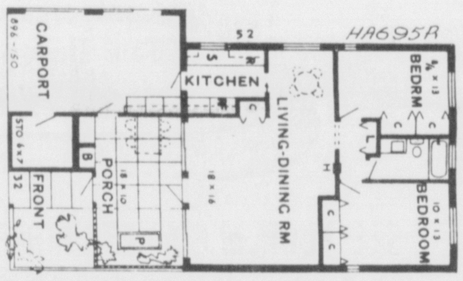
If your evergreens show brown or dead areas after the winter, it may be because the frozen soil could not replace moisture lost through the needles to drying winds.

Next fall, spray with anti-desiccant compounds to reduce dieback and browning. This will cut moisture loss from foliage.

The anti-desiccant or anti-wilting material should be applied on a sunny fall day, when the temperature is 40 or above. The compounds, mixed with water, give leaves a sheen and slow the tree transpiration, or vapor loss, in winter. When spring growth begins, the coating is shed. A second application next January is helpful.

Mulches around the plant will help keep ground temperatures more constant and conserve soil moisture. Apply the mulch after the first frost.





RETIREMENT HOME: This compact two-bedroom, one bath is designed for a narrow lot. It requires 896 square feet, plus carport and screened porch. For maximum privacy no windows face the neighbors. The porch contains a barbecue and a fish pool and can be used for dining out. This is a masonry, slab-on-grade structure topped by a gently pitched tar and gravel roof. Heat can be gas or electric. Plan HA695R was designed by Architect Jan Reiner, 1000 52nd Street North, St. Petersburg, Fla., 33710.

COUNTERING critics of the Laotian campaign, Adm. Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, says the Allied drive has "severely disrupted" North Vietnam's operations and is "well worth the cost" in allied casualties and equipment losses.

The Phoenicians are credited with the invention of soap about 600 B.C. Jessie Oakley of Newburgh, N.Y., began manufacturing the first soap cakes that were individually wrapped and uniform in weight about 1830, The World Almanac says. Previously, soap had been sold to grocers in large blocks from which pieces were cut as desired.

EVERYONE WATCHED THE southbound Frisco train come in at Sikeston more than 50 years ago. This was on Feb. 21, Sunday, but the year was not available. It was not a wintry day.

A SATURDAY STREET SCENE around 1905-08 looking northeast on Front street with the Farmer Supply store later J. C. Penney store, at left. The corner portion of the building was the first location of the Bank of Sikeston. Across the street was the former Citizens or Peoples Bank. The families came in their wagons for the day and unhitched the wagons in the railroad parking lot.

It's The Law

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

After work each night, Norton would spruce up like a Christmas tree and sit on the stoop of his apartment house with one of his more curvacious next-door neighbors. And, if their constant appearance together looked deceitful, their ultimate disappearance together was obvious.

Nevertheless, for 13 years, Norton's wife waited hopefully for Norton's return. Her patience unrewarded, she finally applied for Social Security benefits on the grounds that after seven years of "unexplained" absence, her husband was presumed dead.

"Sorry, lady," she was told, "but, your husband's absence isn't unexplained. He's in limbo somewhere with the bimbo that used to live next door."

"That could be," responded the wife, "but in 13 years, I haven't heard from him, my children haven't heard from him and his parents haven't heard from him. What's more, not even governmental agencies have been able to locate him. Consequently, if Norton isn't dead, he certainly shouid be!"

Whereupon, Norton's wife took her claim for Social Secuirty benefits to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you deem Norton dead and award Social Secuirty benefits to his patient wife?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that despite the fact that Norton had taken off with his curvacious neighbor, reason dictates that in 13 years he would have contacted his wife, children or parents if he were alive. And, since extensive search and inquiry has failed to turn him up, Norton's absence being unexplained for seven years, he's presumed dead.

Based upon a 1965 United Staes District Court Decision.

Smoking Linked to Childbearing Risk

COLUMBIA--Women protect more than just their own hearts and health when they give up cigarettes, according to the Missouri Heart Association.

Citing a major study in Great Britain, the Association says there is new evidence that mothers who smoke face a significantly greater risk of stillbirth, or death of babies shortly after birth, than do nonsmoking mothers. The study revealed that smoking during pregnancy harms the fetus by exerting a retarding influence on its growth.

In another test of more than 2,000 mothers during a one-year period in the state of Washington, there was a higher incidence of miscarriages, stillbirths, newborn deaths and premature labor among women who smoked than among nonsmokers, adds the Missouri Heart Association.

But according to Dr. Jesse L. Steinfeld, Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, women have not been giving up the cigarette habit in as great numbers as have men. Dr. Steinfeld also has cited evidence that women have more trouble quitting than do men. The relapse rate of women who go back to tobacco is 38 per cent higher than that of men.

In the past four years alone about 10 million Americans have given up cigarettes, but women account for only 300,000 of this total. It is additionally estimated that the number of women in this country who presently do smoke cigarettes is about 20 million.

The 10 million who have been able to quit stand as proof, says the Missouri Heart Association, that the effort is not as difficult as some make it sound. It can be made easier if done in a group with friends, or with the help of such organizations as the Heart Association.

Among the material on smoking and health available from the Missouri Heart Association are "Cigarette Quiz," "What Everyone Should Know About Smoking and Heart Disease," and "How to Stop Smoking." The latter can be used along with five half-hour films on smoking withdrawal, which can be made available for group viewing.

The Missouri Heart Association will not only help you give up smoking, but will help you to understand and to change other habits to lower your risk of heart disease. These risk factors include high blood pressure, a diet high in animal fats and cholesterol, lack of regular exercise, excess weight and the influence of diseases such as diabetes.

The Prayer
from The Upper Room

"He also who has the two talents come forward, saying, 'Master, you delivered to me two talents; here I have made two talents more.'" (Matthew 25:22, RSV)

PRAYER: Our Father, we ask Thee today to help us to recognize our talents. Help us as we put them into service for others. Keep us from laziness and neglect in their use. We ask in the name of Thy son. Amen.

DOGGONE PHONY

PARKSTONE, England (AP — A telephone operator hurriedly called Dorset police when she heard deep breathing at the other end of the line.

They rushed to the house convinced that the caller was seriously ill and found a boxer dog asleep with the telephone receiver beside him. "He must have thought it was a bone," the owner said later.

Old Guard Backlash Feared on Teller Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new system of recording votes in the House is working so well its supporters express fear guardians of the old order may try to scuttle it.

The new method, which played a major part in the startling House vote to cut off funds for the supersonic transport plane, is the key reform put over last year by younger members.

They hoped to achieve two things: Bring more members to the floor to vote on amendments, and make them publicly responsible for their positions. Until this year members were counted for or against amendments but not recorded by name

The 217-204 teller vote by which the House adopted an amendment deleting the SST funds would appear convincing proof the reformers' hopes have been realized.

But because the vote also represented a stinging defeat for the Democratic and Republican leadership in the House, the administration and such powerful special interests as the aerospace industry and organized labor, the reformers are uneasy.

They report widespread grumbling about the new system among leaders, committee chairmen and others who don't like to be rolled by the rankand-file.

No leaders will criticize the recording of teller votes openly.

KEEPS HIS WORD

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Former U.S. Open golf champion Lee Trevino was quite serious when he said two years ago he would never play in the Masters tournament again. "It is not my kind of course," Trevino said.

Trevino will play in the 10th annual Old Dominion Open April 3-5, a time usually set aside by Masters competitors for practice. The Masters dates at Augusta, Ga., are April 8-11.

Profits from the Old Dominion will go to the United Negro College Fund.

Hearing Waived On Stealing Charge

CHARLESTON---Charles Lee Owens waived preliminary hearing on a felony charge of stealing before Magistrate Judge T. J. Brown, Jr. and was bound over to circuit court to appear March 31 or such time as the court shall set.

Owens is accused of taking two gold rings and a matched set of rings, valued at $197.57 from Bryants Jewelry Store in Charleston March 12. He failed to post $1,000 bond and was returned to jail.

In an extradition case (felony) the court found Norval Bohannon properly charged with the commission of crime in the state of Texas and has fled from justice. It was ordered by the court that by warrant the defendant be committed to jail for 30 days, to enable the arrest of the defendant to be made under a warrant of the governor of Missouri on a requisition of the executive authority of the state having jurisdiction of the offense. Bohannon was released on $1,000 bond returnable to court April 17.

Rape and felonious assault charges were dismissed by Judge Brown against Paul Johnson, James Foster and Rufus "Pop" Armstrong. Other cases dismissed included a common assault charge against Clyde Ray Tucker; and a disturbing the peace charge against Elax George.

A. J. Sittner dismissed a possession of property for non-payment of rent suit against Bill Teague.

Dale Parden and Dickie Parden, both charged with disturbing the peace were given suspended six month jail sentences and placed on probation for one year. Condition of probation being they obey the law and pay their fines and court costs. Dale Parden was fined $30 and Dickie Parden was fined $31.

Judge Brown revoked the parole of Cletus Daniels after the defendant appeared on a charge of driving while his operator's license was under revocation. Daniels was sentenced to ten days in jail for having no operator's license.
